

In First Statement Daugherty Impugns Motives of Critics

Attorney-General Says Full Connection With Morse Has Been Clearly Shown in Past.

TO PUSH PROSECUTION OF WAR FRAUD CASES

He Declares Activities Against Him Will Not Result as Hoped for "Behind the Scenes."

BY JOHN GLEISSNER.

Washington, May 23.—Attorney-General Daugherty, for the first time, has broken his silence to reply to those who have criticized him for his connection with the Morse case and for his alleged laxity in the prosecution of war grafters.

Daugherty said his connection with the Morse case had been "clearly shown" by correspondence between former Attorney General Wickersham and Ex-President Taft. He declared war fraud cases will be prosecuted as expeditiously as possible.

Here is Daugherty's statement: "The correspondence of Ex-President Taft and Attorney-General Wickersham, which was again published this month, clearly shows my connection with the Morse case of many years ago, both civil and criminal.

Questions Motives. "The incentive and motives inspiring this and other agitation will not accomplish the results hoped for by those behind the scenes.

"The various prosecutions of war fraud cases will be carried out as expeditiously as possible, irrespective of these and other activities and attacks, which will be expected.

"I have faith that the people of the country, appreciate the situation and have confidence in the department of justice being fair, judicious and effective."

Other developments in the bipartisan attack on Daugherty, in congress and without, included:

Progress of Attack. 1. An unsuccessful effort by Representatives Johnson and Woodruff to persuade House Leader Mondell and Chairman Campbell, of the rules committee, to call up for action a resolution they introduced, calling for an investigation of the department of justice's attitude toward fraud cases.

2. Decision of Johnson and Woodruff to carry their fight for action on the resolution over the heads of the house leaders, and force a vote, if this is possible.

Diverted Liquor, Charged. 3. Renewed charges by H. L. Scalf, former employee of the department of justice, that high officials had converted to their own use, large quantities of liquor seized by government agents, and a demand that this be investigated by the special grand jury now sitting in the district.

4. Statements by Scalf that he had been informed that Daugherty had asked Peyton C. Gordon, United States district attorney, not to attempt to investigate or prosecute in the alleged appropriation of seized liquors.

5. Publication of a letter from Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney, to Woodruff, in which Untermyer declined to come to the capital for a conference unless an investigation is ordered, but expressing willingness to participate in such a conference in New York.

6. Declaration by Woodruff that such a conference would be held.

Palmer Defends Acts. 7. Publication of a letter by former Attorney-General Palmer, expressing hope that the house would pass the Johnson-Woodruff resolution, and defending his own acts as alien property custodian.

8. Charges by Fletcher Doherty, special assistant attorney general in charge of the prosecution of C. W. Morse, that an effort is being made to organize public sentiment hostile to the prosecution.

Johnson and Woodruff, in their conference with Campbell and Mondell, were unable to obtain any assurances that the resolution of investigation will be brought before the house. Mondell is opposed to it, as is Campbell, on the grounds that the way to obtain results at present is for the department to proceed. The rules committee ordered the resolution, and requested Campbell to call it up, but he has not done so.

So Johnson and Woodruff are seeking ways to go over the heads of the leaders, and force the question to a vote.

Wants Drastic Probe. Untermyer, in his letter to Woodruff, said he was "satisfied nothing short of drastic public investigation will ever disclose the entire truth."

"The method now being pursued will doubtless gather in a few scapegoats for occasional effect who may or may not be tried," said Untermyer. "If

CHARLIE FRANK DIED EARLY TODAY

Veteran Baseball Magistrate and Until Recently Manager of the Atlanta Club.

Memphis, Tenn., May 24.—Charles Frank, one of the organizers of the Southern Baseball association and until a few weeks ago manager of the Atlanta club, died at the home of Mrs. Frank Coleman, here, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, after an illness of more than six months.

Frank, who has been suffering from heart disease and other chronic trouble, came here from Bay St. Louis, Miss., where he spent the winter, about ten days ago. At that time his physicians told him that his condition was critical, and death might come at any time.

He had shown some slight improvement during the last few days, but last night began sinking rapidly.

Frank was the manager of the Memphis club in 1901, 1902 and 1903, winning the Southern league pennant for this city in the latter year. In 1904 he went to New Orleans and managed the club there for a number of years. Several years ago he went to Atlanta as manager, remaining there until his resignation a few weeks ago on account of ill health.

"Charlie" Frank, as he was familiarly known to baseball fans throughout the south, was a native of Mobile, Ala., and was about fifty years old. His first baseball experience was gained on the sand lots around his home town. Later he went to the old St. Louis Cardinals, for whom he played in the outfield for a number of years, afterwards going to the Columbus, Ohio, club.

His first experience as manager was with the Memphis club, and he soon became known as a power in southern association baseball, not only for his strong personality, but through his ability to get together and hold a pennant-winning club. As manager, he won pennants for Memphis, New Orleans and Atlanta.

No arrangements had been made for Mr. Frank's funeral this morning, but it was announced that he would be buried in this city.

GEORGIA PRODUCTS BANQUET TONIGHT

Plans for the "Made-in-Georgia" dinner to be held Wednesday night in the assembly hall at the chamber of commerce, under the auspices of the fifth district organization of women's clubs, have been completed and the occasion promises to be one of the most successful functions ever fostered by the organization, according to Mrs. I. C. Sullivan, secretary.

Reservations have been made for approximately 200 guests, and this number is expected to be increased when final arrangements are made, she asserted. A sumptuous menu made up of exclusive Georgia edibles will insure those in attendance an unusual dinner. During the evening there will be exhibits of paintings by Georgia artists, and a gorgeous display of fashions made from Georgia fashions. This department is in charge of Mrs. Edward T. Moore.

Speakers at the dinner will be Mayor Key, Samuel Rothberg, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association; Mrs. J. E. Hays, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Dr. David Marx, Mrs. Albert Thornton, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Newton C. Wing, state chairman of Georgia Products campaign; John Yopp, secretary of Georgia Manufacturers' association; Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president Atlanta Woman's club; H. G. Hastings, president Georgia association; Mrs. Alonso Richardson, vice president Atlanta Woman's club; Mrs. Irving Thomas, past president Atlanta Woman's club. Hostesses will be Mrs. Joseph N. Moody, Mrs. Omar F. Elder, vice chairman, and Mrs. L. Clarence Smullyan, secretary of the Fifth District organization; Mrs. Claude Frederick and Mrs. Clarence Coppedge, co-chairmen of Fulton county. Others in the receiving line will be Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Mrs. Annie Stewart Pratt; Cornfield K. Ayer, Mrs. William Fisch, Mrs. John Yopp, Mrs. Byron Patton and Mrs. Worth Yankey.

Mrs. George Brandon is in charge of decorations.

The Dixie dainties on the menu, products manufactured from peanuts and sweet potatoes, were donated by Mrs. Annie Stewart Pratt; Cornfield K. Ayer, by the Richards-Smith Grocery company; potatoes by Bell Bros.; coffee and sugar by the McCord-Stewart company; the menu being refined by the Savannah Refining company; flour by the Atlanta Milling company; cake by the American Baking company; sweet potatoes by Green & Miller Produce company; cakes and

JURY PUTS CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER AGAINST YOUTHS

Nine Boys Held for Involuntary Manslaughter by Coroner's Jury in Rocking Case.

FOUR YOUNGER BOYS FOR JUVENILE COURT

Defense Contends That Aspirin Tablets Contributed to Death—Doctor Denies Contention.

The nine boys held in the Fulton county tower in connection with the death of Carlos B. Stanley, 17-year-old white boy, who was fatally injured in West End Sunday night when he was attacked by 13 boys who hurled stones at him, were ordered held on an involuntary manslaughter charge by the coroner's jury which investigated Stanley's death Tuesday.

All of the boys ordered held for the state courts were over 15 years of age, while the four boys held at police station are only 13 years old, were ordered turned to the juvenile court.

All of the nine boys held in the Tower since their arrest Monday made bond shortly after the coroner's jury had reached a verdict. The bond was fixed at $1,000 in each case.

Those held are Alvin W. Peck, 17 years old, of 95 Pearce street; Bert Haiden, 15, 157 Tift street; Preston Heard, 16, 207 Tift street; Charles Cook, 15, 59 Bonnie Brae avenue; B. A. Farlow, 17, 31 Hope street; F. L. Mann, 16, 205 Tift street; L. Clifford Fairm, 17, 68 Bonnie Brae avenue; F. H. King, 17, 11 Hope street, and J. L. Gower, 17, 171 Rockwell street. Those held to the juvenile court were Gilbert White, 13 years old, of 224 Stewart avenue; Fischer Maun, 13, of 110 Elbert street; Dallas Dorman, 15, 11 Gillett street, and W. Maxwell, 14, 10 Pearce street.

Officer's Son on Stand. The order to hold all thirteen youths came as the result of testimony given by Gilbert White, 13-year-old son of Deputy Sheriff J. E. White, who was the most important witness put on the stand during the inquest. He denied that his three youthful companions who were turned over to the juvenile court had anything to do with the stoning of Stanley, declaring that they had been chased away by the older boys before the attack took place. He identified the nine boys held in the tower as being the ones who participated in the rock throwing which resulted in Stanley receiving fatal injuries.

Proceeding him on the stand was Rudolph Pulliam, who was with Stanley when he was injured. He failed to identify any of the rock throwers but gave the details of the attack. His testimony brought out the fact that Stanley and himself had escorted four girls home instead of one, as first reported.

"Dangerous Section." "After taking the girls home," began young Pulliam, "we started to our home, and when we arrived at McClellan's crossing and Lee street we were met by a crowd of boys. One of them walked up to us and said: 'Don't you know it's dangerous to be out in this

RAILWAY OFFICIAL FOR UNIFORM RATE

Railway Traffic Manager Says Intrastate Rate Should Be Adopted to Eliminate Present Differences.

Continued testimony by Charles H. Barham, traffic manager of the N. O. & St. L. railroad, consumed the Tuesday afternoon session of the interstate commerce commission rate hearing in progress before Joseph B. Eastman, representative of the commission.

The testimony purported to demonstrate a growing need for a uniform mileage scale in the establishment of interstate and intrastate class rates.

Edgar Watkins, attorney for the Atlanta freight bureau, revealed Tuesday that the Atlanta freight bureau is indorsing the proposal to fix a definite mileage scale of rates.

The proposed scale will be introduced within a few days, it was indicated Tuesday. The carriers are now presenting argument as to why the uniform scale should be adopted.

At the afternoon session Mr. Barham, in answer to questions, stated that the basic theory in the making and application of rates is the cost of service.

"Ordinarily in making class rates, distance really controls only in a limited way," the witness said. "This be-

Officers Assigned For Georgia Tour By Secretary Weeks

Col. Frank C. Botts, of Washington, and Col. H. C. Fiske, Stationed at Chattanooga, Coming.

TOUR IS OF NATIONAL INTEREST, SAYS LEE

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN, Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, May 23.—(By the Constitution Leased Wire.)—Secretary of War Weeks today officially detailed Colonel Frank C. Botts of the war department, Washington, and Colonel H. C. Fiske, now stationed at 605 Temple Court, Chattanooga, Tenn., as members of The Constitution government expedition into the forest reservations of north Georgia, looking to their dedication for recreational purposes, and to the building of roads and trails therein.

Colonel Botts, who will leave Washington with the government party, Saturday evening, May 27th, is directly in charge of all soldier rehabilitation work, and the establishment of soldier summer and recreational camps.

Colonel Fiske will meet the party upon its arrival in Atlanta. He is directly in charge of waterpower developments and all engineering work incident to government reservations.

Have Full Authority. No assignments for this party could be made by the government that could be of greater value in view of the constructive developments that are sought as a result of the expedition, as both of these officials are practical engineers, and are clothed with authority as heads of their respective departments.

This expedition inaugurated by The Constitution is rapidly assuming nationwide importance. Letters are pouring into The Constitution Bureau here from all the states in the south and many of the states in the middle west.

Congressman Gordon Lee, of the Seventh district, who is the southern member of the National Forestry Commission, calls specific attention to that phase of the expedition today in a statement issued from his office.

In Dual Capacity. Congressman Lee will be a member of the expedition in a dual capacity, for he has been more instrumental than any other one man in the purchase of mountain lands in Georgia by the government, as a member of the National commission, and at the same time he represents a north Georgia district in which there is some of the most beautiful scenery in the eastern states.

"This movement of The Constitution, which I most heartily commend, and in which I had some part in organizing, is one of great importance, not only to the southern states, but to every state east of the Rockies and particularly to those states of the middle west, whose people now are compelled to cross the Rockies to get to any of the national parks," said Mr. Lee in his statement. Continuing, the statement is as follows: "It is not generally known, but it

KIWANIS INDORSES CONSTITUTION PLAN FOR FOREST TOUR

Says Opening of Forests for Recreational Purposes Would Stimulate Life of Section.

Efforts of The Constitution to have the government open up the reservations of north Georgia for recreational purposes and to develop highways through the section, were heartily indorsed Tuesday by the Kiwanis club at its weekly luncheon.

Other indorsements of The Constitution project were received Tuesday from John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway commission. H. H. Dean, prominent lawyer and capitalist of Gainesville, and John Ellis, of Milledgeville, member of the state forestry commission.

The Kiwanis club unanimously adopted a resolution introduced by Kiwanian Dudley R. Cowles. It follows:

"Resolved by the Kiwanis club of Atlanta that we indorse the efforts of The Atlanta Constitution to have the United States government to designate a part of the great forests of the mountains of North Carolina and Georgia as a national park for the use of the people of America.

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Kiwanis club that the proposed reservation is ideally located, and easily accessible to the people east of the Mississippi river; that the variety of mountain, lake and stream will make of it a park of unrivaled beauty, and that the climate, which is unsurpassed in America, will make of this land of the sky a park that can be used as a playground for the American people 365 days in the year;

"Resolved, That we offer The Constitution our assistance in making a great success of the proposed tour of government officials and others the latter part of the month."

Declaring that the movement fostered by The Constitution for the development and exploitation of the forests of north Georgia is the forerunner of practical achievements in that part of the state which will redound to the benefit of the entire south, John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway commission, announced Tuesday that his department will cooperate to the fullest extent in this project and that he will make the tour with the party of government forestry and highway officials which will be conducted next week by The Constitution.

Mr. Holder was highly enthusiastic over the coming of the government officials and asserted that their visit now is a timely one. He said that this movement should not be allowed to lag and that the interest aroused now should be kept up until the government takes the action necessary to make the developments possible.

"There is no doubt that The Constitution struck the iron while it was hot," Mr. Holder said. "There has been talk for years and years about the beauty of the forest section of Georgia, about the immense development possibilities there, about the potential wealth of that section and about what a boon it would be to the citizens of the south to have it opened for the public. But all of this has been talk and now The Con-

QUEEN OF ATLANTA PROSPERITY WEEK NAMES ADAIR KING

Marion Stearns, Wilmette Perdue and Marion Smith Are Trio of Queens for Festival Events.

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR ROSES PAGEANT

Parade Will Leave Peachtree and Ivy Monday Evening and End at Automobile Hall for Dance.

Progress and Prosperity week yesterday assumed the center of the stage in social circles, when queens for three of the leading events of the week were announced. Miss Marion Stearns is queen of the ball, and the "Romance of the Rose" parade. For king of the event her selection was Forrest Adair, Sr. Both Miss Stearns and Mr. Adair will occupy floats in the wonder parade, and upon arriving at Lakewood their coronation will take place. They will review the ball from their throne.

Miss Wilmette Perdue was selected by the debutantes' club as queen of the dance festival to be given on Thursday and Friday nights, under the auspices of the Civic club. Miss Perdue will be known as the "Spirit of the Dance."

The Venetian water carnival, to be given also on Thursday and Friday nights, will have as its queen Miss Marion Smith. This splendid and spectacular event is being staged under the direction of the Lions' club.

Mystery Shrouds Queen. On Saturday night the Atlanta Ad club will have charge, and a most unusual program of entertainment is promised. The "queen" of this event has shrouded her identity with mystery, refusing to divulge her name, or the manner of her arrival at Lakewood park. However, it is announced by the Ad club that this lady will in no degree be less brilliant, attractive and resplendent than the regal attendants of the other events.

The most spectacular and gorgeous parade ever seen in Atlanta is promised when "The Romance of the Rose" reproduction winds its way through the streets of the city. Magnificent floats, 20 in number, constitute this spectacle. More than 150 persons are to participate in the parade, including representation of love, romance, mythology and history.

The parade will assemble at Peachtree and Ivy streets promptly at 6 o'clock, Monday, May 29, starting north on Peachtree at 7:30, to Five Points, to Whitehall, turning into Trinity avenue, to South Pryor street, to Ridge avenue, to Jonesboro road, to Lakewood avenue, to Lakewood park. Arriving at the park the entire procession will circle the race track and disband in front of the grandstand. The participants will then proceed to the automobile hall, Lakewood, and form a part of the grand assemblage to participate in the fancy dress ball. The parade is under the direction of the Kiwanis club, while the ball is being sponsored by the Rotary club of Atlanta.

Fancy Dress Ball. The fancy dress ball will be opened by a grand march led by the king and queen and their court. The royal attendants who will constitute the court are as follows: Attendants of the queen: Miss Ernestine Campbell, Miss Ruby Walker, Miss Mary Malone, Miss Alice Stearns, Miss Wilmette Perdue and Miss Nell Sims. Miss Angel Allen will be the crown-bearer. The pages are Mrs. Katherine Hook Dunlap, Miss Mary Carroll, Miss Christine Meachin and Miss Mary Nevins. Wylie West will be the court leaver. Seventy-nine members of the Rotary club will form a reception and floor committee. Beaumont Davison will act as master of ceremonies in the coronation of the king and queen and their participation in the hall.

Mikado Rehearsals. The presentation of the light opera, Mikado, will be the feature of Tuesday and Wednesday nights, taking place in the large Lakewood automobile hall. An elaborate production of this feature is being planned. The rehearsal for the event will be held

Protest on Charter Ballots is Filed; Rice for New Plan

Voluntary Slash in Freight Rates is Not Expected

Railroad Executives Advance Many Objections to Harding's Proposal. They Cut Rates Themselves.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL, United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, May 23.—Freight rate reductions, it is now indicated, may have to be made by the interstate commerce commission, rather than by the voluntary action of the railroad executives.

The latter course was urged by President Harding in a conference with executives at the white house last Saturday. But the president doubts if the executives will consider it practicable to follow his suggestion.

Voluntary action by the executives was considered preferable, because it would avoid the long and laborious hearings which necessarily precede any order for a change in rates from the interstate commerce commission. A series of rate hearings recently were concluded before the commission, but it has not been decided definitely how much rates will be cut, or how extensively the cut shall apply.

Unverified Report. One report was that the commission would reduce rates 10 per cent on basic commodities, but this could not be verified.

Railroad executives advanced a large number of objections to the program proposed by the president, it was learned. The chief one seems to be that they desire assurances of reduced wages before they will reduce freight rates. Further, difficulty was encountered in endeavoring to harmonize the views of the executives, whose roads carried a large amount of a certain commodity. A road whose principal business was hauling coal, it was explained, would not be willing to consent to a reduction in that direction, while another road which hauled little coal was ready for a cut.

Another difficulty was found in some of the precincts must not be tolerated May 30.

"City council should act. We, therefore, respectfully urge that you call council in special session at once, so that necessary regulations may be speedily adopted."

"We believe council members will concede the necessity for proper rules. And however the individual member may be disposed towards one charter or the other, not one would desire victory for his choice except by the process of an election conducted with every safeguard which fair play will dictate."

"We address you in this open letter, as the publicity attending this method of address will enable you quickly to gather the thoughts of your fellow citizens on this pressing situation."

Thinks Charter Worth Out.

Announcing his advocacy of the

Watkins charter, Mr. Rice said: "I think the old charter is worn out. I was on the committee that wrote it. When it was framed Atlanta was practically a village, and it was made to fit the city at that time. Atlanta has changed in population, in wealth, in many respects, and I know we ought to have a change of charter. The council has become too large and slow to function. It takes too long to get anything done. Now is the best time in the history of the city to get the new charter we need, and I believe the Watkins charter will fill the bill."

Mr. Rice is a former councilman and a former alderman, serving with the councilman body was smaller than it is now.

Among members of the men's charter committee attending the meeting Tuesday, which was held in the offices of Councilman Watkins, were G. W. McClure, Dr. Horace Grant, Marvin Underwood, Horace Russell, P. C. Rice, J. F. Hinds, Philip Welcher, W. H. Preston, W. B. Ahlgren, H. K. Hambo, Julian Boehm, F. O. Bentley, V. H. Kreighbaum, T. C. Chastain, August Straub, J. B. Curtis, Dr. W. B. Hamby, George W. West, W. B. Thomas, Charles M. Walker and G. H. Howard.

Arrangements were made for public meetings to be held in every ward. The committee will meet each day at 5 o'clock at headquarters at the Arlington hotel.

"Women and Negroes."

Besides Dr. Ham at the seventh ward rally, Dr. Grace Kirkland and Rogers Winter, former Choate worker, spoke. Dr. Ham said the Watkins charter drew its strength from the women's vote and the negro vote. He spoke at length against the Watkins plan, pointing out many dangers which he claimed would beset the city under its operation. Dr. Kirkland spoke in eloquent defense of representative government, and urged the women to come out and support the old charter. Mr. Winter spoke at length. Councilman Ashley's ire was aroused when he reached the tenth ward meeting by statements in handbills which were being given out by Watkins supporters.

He took particular exception to a paragraph charging:

"The old system is spending $15,000,000 this year, and it is hard to see where it is going."

Calling the distributor of the handbills over to his side, he demanded to know where he got the information that the city will spend $15,000,000 this year.

"I didn't write the statement," replied the citizen.

"Well, this is just the sort of stuff Councilman Russell has been putting out," said the councilman. "With all respect to the boy—because I like him—he knows no more about government than a Fiji Islander."

In his speech later Mr. Ashley said he is chairman of the council claims committee of which Mr. Russell is a member, and declared that he attends so seldom as to be almost a stranger.

The councilman scored some of the headquarters statements of the Watkins group in the run-off campaign as "outrageous and slanderous."

Charges Slander.

"They say that the $4,000 streets ordinary appropriation in each ward is used as a campaign fund by the council members. There never was a baser slander uttered. It outraged me when I read it. The streets ordinary fund is for the purpose of making repairs to the streets, and it takes mighty hard stretching to make it go anywhere."

"They make the most outrageous statements imaginable about the parks. They say the parks were donated to us and the city government is entitled to no credit."

"Piedmont park was not given to the city of Atlanta and only a part of Grant park was donated. They say the Auditorium was given to the city, which is not true. The Auditorium was built by a group of citizens. Bonds were floated, which the city assumed, and the city was given nothing."

"But the basest of all the slanders," he continued, "was when they said we allowed four feet of the Cyclorama painting to be cut off. The canvas was trimmed to cut off some nail holes, but not an inch of the picture was destroyed."

"The councilman predicted an overwhelming vote for the old charter. Preceding his speech a stand-pat address was made by Attorney Roy Lewis. He declared he didn't believe the women were going to vote to tear down the present government. He said the men should guide them and advise them, "and then they'd vote as patriotically and intelligently as the men."

The speaker stated that he formerly lived in Richmond, Va., which turned from a councilmanic form of government, like Atlanta's, to a city-manager form. He asserted that "the city was not in the power under the old government; it is now operating the city-manager government."

City-manager government he termed a "neutrism," which the Watkins "theorists" are trying to inject into the city's system.

He took a ray at the present board of education in passing. "I have been told that years ago every man on the board was qualified by reason of intellectuality and character to become a United States senator," he said. "Now look at the personnel of that board." He declared that the amended plan as proposed by the standpaters, of increasing the size of the board to one from each ward nominated by their respective wards, would remove that body from politics. The speaker was followed by Attorney Lewis Foster, who spoke briefly, attacking the Watkins charter as "autocratic." The meeting was held at the residence of W. R. Scott.

Standpat Meetings.

Standpat meetings were held Tuesday night at 837 Chestnut street and 236 Bellwood avenue, in the fifth ward. The standpat organization was named, composed of the following: Mrs. G. K. Dennis, chairman; Mrs. Charles N. Cook, secretary; A. C. Burton, Mrs. Alice Noel, J. Garner, W. M. Nails, Oscar Howell, W. A. Malone, C. C. McGeehee, Charles N. Cook, Charlie Barret and Mrs. Annie Smith. Another meeting was announced for Friday night.

Alderman Harry Goodhart charged Tuesday that the announcement that $1,000,000 is to be spent on street improvement, outside of a maintenance fund and set aside to keep up new pavements, is $4,000 for each ward. "When street is paved the whole cost is assessed against the property owners," he said. "They pay for their own street and pay it all, unless the street car company bears a part."

Wednesday night a Watkins meeting will be held at the Kirkwood high school. Miss Eleanor Russell will speak. The standpaters will hold a rally at Stewart street and Pierce street, in the tenth ward. Dr. Grace Kirkland, James M. Hollowell and Rogers Winter are the speakers.

W. B. Ahlgren, a member of the Watkins campaign committee, announced a meeting for Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at the corner of Moreland and Peachtree streets.

Councilman J. C. Murphy, stand-patter, gave out the following statement Tuesday:

"The proponents of the Watkins Atlanta plan charter are urging as a reason for supporting their charter the provision in the proposed plan appropriating 80 per cent of the city's revenue to the schools. It seems but fair that the citizens should know just what was done by the present city administration for the schools last year without the present charter. The total revenue of the city last year was $5,916,963.34, including in this all services rendered at cost. The following apportionments were made to the school department:

26 Pct. of $5,916,963.34, $1,538,410.47 Balance due 1920 ..... 22,141.64 Non-resident tuition ..... 11,512.05 State school fund ..... 165,249.00 Vocational guidance ..... 4,718.12 Special appropriation ..... 133,000.00

Total ..... $1,875,031.88

"In addition to the above appropriations it will be necessary this and succeeding years for the city to set aside its interest and sinking fund on the $4,000,000 school bonds the sum of $333,000, which, granting that revenue this year will be the same as last year, will require an appropriation to the schools in the sum of $2,208,031.88. Included in the above gross income of the city in the amount of $5,916,963.34 is receipts from the sale of water and other services rendered at cost in the amount of $948,248.99, leaving a total net spendable income of $4,968,714.35. The appropriation to the schools would then be 44 per cent of the net income instead of 26 per cent. The actual appropriation to the school department last year without the necessity of providing interest and sinking fund for the $4,000,000 in school bonds, was in excess of 37.5 per cent of the net income of the city. If the schools require more they will certainly get it without the necessity of accepting an obnoxious city manager. The proposition to my mind is a make in the grass ready to sink its venomous fangs into the very heart of Atlanta. Beware of it. The schools are faring far better than either city department and your children are getting and will continue to get the very best in an educational way under the present charter."

Diplomas Given Twenty Girls At State Normal

Athens, Ga., May 23.—(Special.)

Twenty girls were graduated from Lucy Cobb institute Monday evening, when Judge Andrew J. Cobb, president of the board, delivered the diploma.

This commencement marks the close of the sixty-third year of the school and was of special interest in that it marked the close of Miss Mildred Rutherford's career as active president of the school. Miss Rutherford resigned several months ago, and in July will retire from the presidency in favor of Miss Mildred Nell, who has been elected to succeed her. Miss Rutherford was graduated from Lucy Cobb in 1868, and in 1880 was made its president, having served since then with the exception of periods of vacations.

The annual play by the dramatic class was given Saturday night under the supervision of Miss Mildred Rutherford. The play was "The Baccalaureate" and was given by Rev. C. J. Harrell, of Atlanta.

Miss Mary Strahan read the valedictory and Miss Pittman the salutatory at the graduating exercises to-night.

The graduating class is made up of the following: Mercer Vance, post-graduate, Clinton, S. C.; Elizabeth Arnold, Athens, Ga.; Lucy Elizabeth Harper, Athens, Ga.; Hallie Kilpatrick, Athens, Ga.; Nell Lee, Shannock, Fla.; Clara Belle Rutherford, Roberts, Ga.; Mary Strahan, Athens, Ga.; Louise Upson, Athens, Ga.; Martha Upson, Athens, Ga.; Sue Reed, Mason, Ga.; Virginia Boston, Marietta, Ga.; Birdie Mae Jones, Athens, Ga.; Nancy Kennedy, Atlanta, Ga.; Edith Pittman, Gaffney, S. C.; Marian Talmadge, Athens, Ga.; Greedna Wood, Sandersville, Ga.; Margaret Young, Athens, Ga.

Commencement Program.

LaGrange, Ga., May 23.—(Special.) Commencement exercises of the LaGrange high school, will begin Friday evening, May 26, with a play presented by the senior class.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth will preach the commencement sermon at the high school auditorium Sunday evening, May 28. The class day exercises will be held at 4 o'clock Monday.

The baccalaureate address will be delivered by Dr. R. E. Park, of the department of English, University of Georgia, Tuesday, after which the graduating exercises will be held and 51 pupils will receive their diplomas and certificates.

for arrest and conviction of the bombers and employees of the National Shown Case company, of which Mayor Dimon is president, have offered a $500 reward.

Denunciation of the plan was voiced by Jesse Mercer, secretary of the Law Enforcement League of Georgia, who was one of the speakers at the mass meeting. "I don't say the Ku Klux did this," he shouted. "I believe they did."

The speaker said regardless of who was responsible for the outrage that "Georgia expects to see something come out of this to save us from further humiliation." He also declared the people must discourage organizations whose members are masked. The remarks were cheered.

C. Frank McLaughlin, solicitor general of the Chattahoochee circuit of the superior court, the first speaker, pledged his efforts to apprehend the men responsible. T. Hicks Fort, a criminal lawyer, told the crowd he would not take part in the defense of any one arrested in the case against whom there is "any decent testimony."

Other speakers included Walker R. Flournoy of the American Legion, Miss Edwina Wood and Mrs. Rhoda Brown, representing women's clubs; the Rev. J. A. Thomas, pastor of St. Luke's Methodist Episcopal Church, delivering the literary address.

South, and Rabbi F. L. Rosenthal, Temple H'N Israel.

The crowd assembled was so great that the meeting was adjourned to the opera house as the courthouse was not large enough. Frank U. Garrard, former chairman of the Muscogee county commissioners, presided.

FEE SYSTEM RAPED BY GRAND JURY OF CHATHAM

Savannah, Ga., May 23.—(Special.)—In its general presentations reported today in the superior court the grand jury denounce the plan of paying county officers with fees, and strongly recommended that the legislature abolish the system. As a solution, it was recommended that the general bill be passed investing the county commissioners or governing bodies of each county with the authority to fix fair compensation for all county officers and employees, with the concurrence of the grand jury.

So important did the grand jurors, of which John J. Cummings was foreman, consider "fee evil," that no other subject was given attention in the summary to the general presentations. The belief was expressed that if county officers were placed on a fair salary, and the fee plan abolished, the county tax rate could be materially lowered, and the number of tax executions against property owners of modern means reduced materially. With the large sums saved, more schools and better school facilities could be provided, it was asserted.

39 BOYS AND GIRLS AWARDED DIPLOMAS

Tifton, Ga., May 23.—(Special.)—Thirty-nine graduates, new high record for this institution, received diplomas at the Second District Agricultural and Mechanical school today. These graduates represented practically every county in the district with one from Florida.

The graduating exercises closed commencement week at the school which began in the fall of 1919. In the class, 12 in number, were dressed made by their own hands in the domestic science department.

Exercises were held in the auditorium of the school and were witnessed by a large audience. The class essay was read by Lillian Brannen and the class valedictory was delivered by Marvin Fletcher. Short addresses were made by W. C. Vereen, of Monticello; B. C. Gardner, of Camilla; I. Golders, of Fitzgerald; B. C. Ellis, of Tifton; J. W. Blinn, of Cordele; W. R. Fleming, of Crisp, and the diplomas were delivered by N. L. Stapleton, of Colquitt.

T. E. Phillips, was elected as chairman of the board, J. B. Warrall, vice-chairman, and S. L. Lewis, secretary. B. J. Wallace, of Tifton, treasurer, and T. E. Phillips, of Tifton, and B. J. Wallace, and J. L. Herring local executive committee.

OVER 400 ATTEND AD CLUB AFFAIR

Proving to be one of the most enjoyable frolics in the history of the organization, the dinner-dance-cabaret of the Ad club, given Tuesday night at the Ansley hotel roof garden, was attended by over 400 persons, consisting of club members and their ladies.

The dinner was the contribution of a large number of Atlanta's progressive manufacturers and supply dealers. An excellent menu was provided. Elbert Thornton, of Thornton's cafeteria, was in charge of the kitchen, which accounted for the exceptional service which was rendered the guests. He had as his trusty lieutenant, Leonard, the famous, fat, black cook, who has the reputation of having cooked for every president who has visited Atlanta, and who now is in charge of the cuisine over at Thornton's cafeteria. Leonard was all smiles and perspiration all evening, as usual.

The cabaret program included seventeen numbers of such uniformly high standard and high pressure entertainment value that the merry party was kept in an uproar all evening.

Standing out as headliners throughout the evening were Miss Annie Mae Coleman, petite and charming Atlanta danseuse, and the Whitney sisters, whose voices are universally admired. These young ladies, who are to be the particular stars in the local Ad club delegation to Milwaukee next month, gave the assembled guests an inkling of what delightful support they will give Atlanta at the convention.

Miss Coleman was assisted by six of her dancing pupils, including Misses Louise Watter, Mildred Rose, Reese Tumbler, Mary Lee Webb, Dorris Cornell and Lillian O'Neal.

In addition to the Misses Whitney, other musicians included the Tech Glee club, composed of Dexter Jordan, Billy Kenny, Charlie Lyon and Russel Stokes, also Erin Farley, the baritone, and Byron Warner, the tenor. G. B. Adair, famous monologist, had a brand-new assortment of stuff, and Archie Mitchell, of the southern shippers' bureau, put on a black-face act that brought down the house.

Outstanding stage successes of the evening included an Apache dance, featuring Misses Watts and Tumbler; the butterfly dance of Miss Coleman; the "Indian scene," and a selection from "The Mikado," sung by Misses Whitney and Mrs. Joe McMillan; a Russian dance by Miss Eleanor Todd Moffett; "The Death of Jax," a most picturesque tableau representing the final obsequies of recent musical abortion, and the Spanish dance, given by Miss Coleman and her six pupils.

A boxing mill between two newboys also added much to the entertainment of the proceedings.

The various cabaret features were interspersed with dancing by the guests. An excellent orchestra furnished by Byron Warner provided the music.

A large number of special stunts were in progress during the evening. An old-fashioned bar, two beautiful young candy girls, a couple of ragmuffin newgirls, and many other side shows, kept the merriment at white heat.

REQUEST REPORTS ON WEST POINT MILK DEPOT FUND

All churches that received subscriptions for the West Point Milk depot fund on "Mother's day," which have not turned the collections over to the committee, are urged to send in this money as soon as possible to J. J. Goodrum, treasurer, in the First company of Georgia building, according to an announcement made by the committee Tuesday.

It is the plan of the committee to publish all of the names of the contributors to the fund. For this reason they urge the churches to send in their complete lists at once.

OFFICERS ASSIGNED TO GEORGIA TOUR

is a matter of government statistics, that six million people visit the national forests of the west for recreational purposes each year. This fact alone establishes their great value to the people when once dedicated for that purpose. A large portion of these people camp in the forests and mountains of the west. It is a reservation for two days to several weeks, and no feature of American life is more attractive to all the people than the privilege that the government gives them for enjoying during the summer months, the great outdoors. Let me say with all emphasis that there is no section of the United States furnishing a more attractive country for health and pleasure than the mountain section of Georgia. All of north Georgia abounds, as no other section does in the United States, in springs of pure limestone and freestone, iron, sulphur, magnesia and lithia. These features alone give north Georgia an advantage, assuring health for the campers and pleasure seekers that no other section, to my knowledge, gives.

Nation-Wide Interest.
"Beginning on the historic western border is Lookout mountain, from 1,500 to 2,000 feet high, and a plateau of from five to ten miles wide. Pigeon mountain has an altitude averaging 1,500 feet, and is 20 miles long. It is, like Lookout, absolutely dotted with mineral springs, in some of which are found the coldest and purest water in the country. Going to the east, we find the famous Co-hutta range of mountains, 2,000 feet high, with beautiful plateaus dotted with rivers and springs of historic interest. DeSoto fort is clearly marked. Thence to the east there are wonderful forests and mountains as far as the South Carolina line.

"This move, which has now assumed such proportions that desired results must and will come, is actually nation-wide in its interest, and too much praise cannot be given to The Atlanta Constitution for organizing and putting into concrete shape a plan for the dedication of the national forests of Georgia to recreational purposes, and the building of good roads through the same. It may be said here that this is the first time that the three interested branches of the government, the road department, the forestry department and the war department, have been thus co-ordinated for a single purpose."

W. R. Neal, chief engineer Georgia highway department, arrived in Washington today to accompany the expedition to Georgia, and thence throughout the mountains. Chairman John Holder will also accompany the expedition.

KIWANIS INDORSES CONSTITUTION PLAN

stitution is going about the matter in a practical way which is bound to bring results. I am familiar with that section of the state and I know that when the government officials see for themselves just what the situation is there, will be action in favor of the project and that the action will not be long delayed."

Will Make the Tour.
Mr. Holder has been spending the last week at Hot Springs where he attended the sessions of the general conference of the Methodist church and heretofore has not had time to go into the details of the tour. He declared Tuesday, however, that he is ready to take the tour next Monday and that the highway department will co-operate in furnishing some of the automobiles for the trip if needed.

Mr. Holder said there is little doubt that vast developments will come in north Georgia just as soon as the state and government highways to that section and through the forestry region are completed.

"This development will not be limited to the provision of a beautiful recreation grounds for the people," Mr. Holder said. "It comes also in other lines, particularly in the building of towns and cities, increasing the present mineral output, and multiplying the volume of trade flowing to and from that territory, in the improvement of schools and school systems, in the establishment of banks, and in the general development of that entire section."

Mr. Holder said it will be beneficial to his department to have the government officials come to Georgia to look over the highway work that has been done and to see what the state is preparing to do in highway construction. He said he would enjoy the opportunity of conferring with the government officials, particularly those in the highway department, about close co-ordination of work in north Georgia.

Beautiful Section.
Mr. Dean declared that he will be on hand to welcome the government officials to Gainesville and that the citizens of that place are in hearty accord with the forest development project. Following is his statement:

"I am greatly gratified to learn of the enterprise of The Constitution and its success in securing a visit of inspection by the United States forest commission, together with Congressmen Bell and Lee, and believe that the trip will result in securing the long hoped for national highway from Atlanta, through the Appalachian forest reserve of north Georgia to Asheville, N. C.

"I have made a number of visits through the great west and have seen the beauties of Yellowstone park, the Rocky mountains, the Sierra Nevada mountains and the western coast from Seattle to Los Angeles, and the beautiful valley and falls of the Yosemite. I have also visited Asheville and the mountains of North Carolina and Virginia, Minnehaha falls in Minnesota, and Mammoth cave in Kentucky, the Great Lakes of the North and the great Niagara of the east, but none of these, with all their grandeur and wondrous beauty compare, in my opinion, with the beautiful mountains, falls, scenery and flowers along the foothills of the Blue Ridge, which have now come into the possession of the United States government as a part of its forest reserves.

"The Amicolola, the Anna Ruby, and the Tusquitee falls, in their beauty excel the falls of the far-famed Yosemite and Minnehaha; the wonderful laurel, azalea and rhododendron flowering along the banks of the Chattahoochee, Tallulah, Hiwassee and Nantahala rivers excel the wild flowers of any other section of the United States; while the lofty grandeur of Yonah, Trey and Fnota mountains far exceeds any of the mountains of the west in their sublime beauty and soft loveliness.

"The air is purer, the climate more invigorating and healthful, while the sweet water gushing from the mountain sides is as cold as ice, healthful and refreshing.

"A well graded national highway from Atlanta to Asheville would place this forest reserve within easy reach of all the tourists of the south and make it the garden spot for summer tourists."

"Congressman Bell has kindly invited me to join the party as it passes through Gainesville, stating that he has arranged to entertain a portion of the party at his summer home at the foot of Yonah mountain, and I am writing to request the privilege of entertaining the remainder of the party at my summer home in Helen on the headwaters of the Chattahoochee, as they pass through and spend Monday night."

John Riis Approves.

Mr. Riis, of the forestry committee, issued the following statement:

"As a member of the Georgia forestry committee and having been deeply interested in seeing proper forestry legislation secured in this state, I wish to express my interest in your tour of the north Georgia country.

"Coming as it does, at a time when the Georgia forestry committee is trying to impress upon the people of Georgia, the needs of the state in the way of forest protection and reforestation, it will undoubtedly awaken the people and greatly assist the forestry committee in its work which is largely one of education.

"Georgia is far behind in the appreciation and care of its forests, and it is a fact that for several years the efforts of the federal government to secure cut-over lands at the headwaters of streams in north Georgia and then aside as national forests in which the timber and the water flow would be protected, were strenuously opposed by misinformed people and were held back from participating in a form of federal aid that other states have welcomed.

Will Save Forests.
"To my mind the greatest benefit that will accrue from the proposed tour will not be in the construction of roads into this section, for that will eventually follow wherever the government has established national forests; it is part of the forest policy and necessary to the proper protection and patrol of the forest. The real benefit will come from an awakened interest in the protection of our forested hills and watersheds and the calling of the public's attention to Georgia's needs along this line.

"Just at this time, pressed by the need of ready cash, every Georgia farmer who has a little woodlot or a patch of timber with any merchantable value whatever, is selling it off at a fair price. At the rate the little and big mills are cutting timber in our state today, we are going to see our small supply wiped out in a few years. The crisis is a far more important one than the average citizen realizes and any step or any movement that will awaken us to the point where we will demand from the legislature an established forest policy with the funds to back it up, should receive the backing and approval of every Georgian."

STILL SEEK PARK SITE FOR SCHOOL

Several Grant Heirs Express Willingness to Sign Quitclaim Deeds in Favor of Girls' High School.

Members of the Atlanta bond commission are hopeful that the northern end of Grant park may yet be given over to the city as the site for the Girls' High school.

One of the commissioners said Tuesday that some of the heirs of the L. P. Grant estate have voluntarily stated their willingness to sign quitclaim deeds, but others are still in the attitude of objection.

Options have been secured on a number of other tracts, but the commission is agreed that Grant park is the feasible and superior site, if it can be secured. Members of the commission, who have been most actively interested in behalf of the Grant park site, were of the opinion that there is a strong possibility that the Grant heirs will consent to the school being erected on the park property.

The commission was scheduled to meet Tuesday afternoon, but no meeting was held on account of lack of a quorum.

The board of education had sent to the body for concurrence a recommendation that a tract of approximately 41-1/2 acres adjoining the Jewish orphanage property be purchased as the site for the new Fraser Street school, and that approximately one acre be bought to enlarge the English Avenue school lot and become the site for the building of an annex.

Before the commission acts definitely on the board's recommendation it will make a personal inspection of the proposed lots. The new Fraser school tract is in two lots. One fronts 405 feet on Capitol avenue and 250 feet on Crew. The other lying alongside fronts 400 feet on Crew and 100 feet on Love street. The price recommended is $26,500. Most of the property is vacant.

There are six lots embraced in the proposed English avenue extension, early all are occupied by residences. The recommended purchase price is $21,850.

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and he placed it with the drugstore in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for disease peculiar to womanhood. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weakness of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received from their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

REGENSTEIN OFFERS WONDERFUL BARGAINS

"I'll go with you to see the things," said a smart young matron yesterday on Whitehall street when she was invited to make an inspection of Regenstein's golden anniversary sale, "but I've got all the clothes I ought to have. So I can't be tempted to buy."

The window display arrested both women, and the young matron began to weaken in her determination of self-restraint even before she got into the store.

"That sand-colored hat is the best thing I've seen this season," she admitted reluctantly. "Let's go see what the price is."

The millinery department was in festive array; underfoot the oriental rugs were just back from the cleaners, and all around were vases of spring flowers, new upholstery and peaches of hats.

"The sand color is lovely," repeated young Mrs. Blank, when it was brought in from its place in the window, "and I know it will go with nearly everything I've got, but this lemon-colored thing with pastel-tinted Georgette flowers certainly looks delicious to me. I wonder if John would stand for another overdraft this month."

Just Made for Her.

About this time the milliner in charge showed a French hat left over from a group of importations which had been reduced to half price exactly, and Mrs. Blank suddenly found, and so did everybody else in the department, that the creator of this particular chapeau away over in France must have had this little woman's features in view when she designed this particular hat.

"And, anyway, it is soft and pliable. It can be tucked away in a suitcase when I go touring," was Mrs. Blank's final convincing argument to herself as she ordered it sent out, and then set about persuading her companion that the latter's recommendation of its completeness nothing so much as "one of those all-white hats. Can you imagine anything smarter than that one of your kind with your crepe de chine?"

"I came to look. I didn't come to buy," was the hard-hearted rejoinder, "and we haven't even been upstairs."

"What have we especially interesting in our ready-to-wear? Why, everything is special as to price," said the manager. "We want to make the anniversary particularly memorable through our prices, although our goods are also the newest and the latest dictates."

Falls for Volles.

Handmade volles were unfortunately the first things to be shown. Unfortunately, because the superior-minded woman who "only came to look, not to buy," fell for these dainty confections without a murmur of protest.

"Why, they are just as exquisite as those things we had offered us by representatives of New York and New Orleans houses for twice, nearly three times, the money," she exclaimed as she looked at the price ticket. "Just the same hand finish, dainty, without being overdone. I've got to have that coral color!" And into the fitting room the two disappeared.

On the way out, some sweaters stopped them.

"That is the first sweater I ever saw that had a waistline in the right place for me," the superior one said. "Imported hair it was made of, in a lovely shade of orchid, and then there were silk slip sweaters, especially suited to slender girlish lines, these in happily becoming colors instead of the glaring hues which have been so run into the ground by the masses."

And the astonishing thing is that these informal garments, which, because of the democracy of their use, one would expect to be kept within a price to meet the democratic pocket-book, but which in truth have for several years been almost prohibitive in price except to women who do not have to be democratic, were on sale for a song.

Alluring Attire.

The linen gowns and those of kindred materials divided interest between designs which relied for their trimming on simple drapery and those made more striking with embroidery in colors that suggested Czech-Slovak influence. There were charming instances of the lingerie costumes that made one picture one's self in it delightfully ensconced on a summer resort porch with a festive parasol shading one's eyes, in distinction from the more mannish sport clothes that have held their own long enough to make the strictly feminine and frivolous attire occasionally, at least, most alluring.

All-white holds its own in the summer costume, according to this display, with the same approval of fashion as do the vivid colors combined with white, which make the sport costumes distinctive, and then there is the perennial and indispensable utility gown, usually in dark blue or black, this season of Canton crepe or tulle, which some women reserve for the damp days, and others use for shopping or such occasions, regardless of the weather.

Taking it all in all, the anniversary sale at Regenstein's is no place to restrain one's impulse to buy. Rather it is one of those times when buying is an economy.

Meyer to Confer With Loan Board While in Atlanta

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, May 23.—(By Constitution Bureau Wire.)—Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance corporation, will be in Atlanta Friday to confer with the corporation's loan board and possibly to attend the convention of bankers.

While there he is expected to take up the institution of proper machinery with the corporation's loan board by which loans can be made by the War Finance corporation to co-operative farm organizations in Georgia, which is provided for in the enabling law and has been liberally practiced in many of the agricultural states, but not in Georgia.

Congressman Charles H. Brand, of the Eighth district, a member of the banking and currency committee, has been active in getting the best service for the farmers of Georgia available from the corporation, has established the fact in correspondence with the corporation's Washington office that every dollar of the six millions that have been loaned in Georgia "for agricultural and live stock purposes" has been loaned to banks, and that no direct loans have been made to farmer groups, as was contemplated.

By reason of this fact, while the work of the corporation has been most valuable to Georgia during a period of general financial distress, the popular impression that funds of the War Finance corporation are going into the pockets of the farmers themselves is quite an erroneous one.

Judge Brand released today the following concrete information furnished him by the corporation's Washington office:

First, that up to April 1 the total loans in Georgia amounted to $5,689,500. The sum total now reaches over $6,000,000.

Second, that the corporation has loaned the following amounts to co-operative associations in states other than Georgia, but not one dollar in Georgia:

Arkansas, $1,200,000; Arkansas, $1,200,000; California, $2,800,000; Idaho, $862,855.88; Kentucky, $10,000,000; Minnesota, $15,000,000; Oklahoma, $6,000,000; Tennessee, $5,000,000; Texas, $9,787,566.50; Virginia, $1,000,000; Washington, $5,327,833.65.

Authority for these loans direct to farmers was given by the original War Finance corporation by the agricultural credit act of August 24, 1921.

Of the $5,689,500 loaned in Georgia to April 1, $1,000,000 was loaned in the eighth congressional district.

A luncheon will be given at the Capital City Club on Friday, May 26, in honor of Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance corporation; Gerald C. Henderson, general counsel, and F. R. Harrison, also of the War Finance corporation.

Matters of importance concerning the work being done by the War Finance board will be discussed by the board and a large number of invitations to attend the luncheon have been sent out to leading citizens by James S. Floyd, who is arranging the entertainment.

MEASURE BY HARRIS IS PASSED BY SENATE

Washington, May 23.—Another bill by Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, designed to aid farmers in securing credit, was passed today by the senate and sent to the house. It broadens the government warehouse act by authorizing the department of agriculture to extend the list of farm products which may be stored in government-licensed warehouses and also to classify stored products.

Sensor Harris said the bill would give farmers larger loans on their stored products and also extend their credit privileges with banks and private concerns. Also it would bring government warehouses into even wider use, he said, through the extension of the list of commodities which may be stored. This list now is limited to perishable products, but the department plans to extend it to semi-perishable commodities.

WATSON EXPLAINS ATTACK ON PHIPPS

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, May 23.—(By Constitution Bureau Wire.)—Senator Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, will publish in his own paper next week his own version of the encounter with Senator Phipps on Monday, which has been published as a sensation in the magnitude throughout the United States.

Sensor Watson will lead up to the encounter with Senator Phipps with a statement as to his objection to the confirmation of three names nominated by the president for postmasters in Georgia, the nominations having been made upon recommendations of Republican Chairman J. L. Phipps. One of the nominations still pending is that of Jack Curran, of Savannah.

The statement of Senator Watson, in part, which will be published as an editorial, follows:

Part of Editorial.

"Finally, after having failed to get rid of Curran's name in any other way, I requested the chairman of the postoffice committee, Senator Towne, to name a subcommittee, before which I would appear and state the case against Curran and two others."

"Senator Towne sent left it to me to name the members of this subcommittee, suggesting that I could act on it myself if I wished to do so."

"From a motive of delicacy, I did not name myself, but I named Senators Phipps, Oddie and Hefflin."

"At that time, I supposed Phipps to be a gentleman, who would govern himself by the unwritten law of the senate."

Submits Evidence.

"I went before the subcommittee, showed them the affidavits in the case of Savannah, Tennesse and Dixie, and told them that, while it was not the rule for a senator to state his reasons for personally objecting to a nomination from his state, I would, out of consideration for the subcommittee, submit my evidence."

"This I did, and the affidavits went into the possession of Senator Phipps."

"To my utter amazement, he took sides with those whom I opposed, just as if he had been employed by them as their attorney."

"He began a correspondence over my head with the friends of the nominees at Savannah, Tennesse and Dixie."

Phipps Asked Withdrawals.

"He has been doing this for several weeks, although he, himself, wrote to the postmaster-general, asking that the nominations be withdrawn."

"The deputy clerk of the committee showed me a copy of the subcommittee's letter to the postmaster-general and the original of his reply."

"The substance of his reply was that it was not the policy of the department to withdraw nominations once sent in by the president unless some cause was shown."

"You can see at once that Senator Phipps, being in possession of the evidence against these nominees, should have immediately put into the hands of the postmaster-general the affidavits so that he could act upon them."

"Senator Phipps did not do this."

Published Withdrawal Story.

"Let me remind you of what you may have forgotten."

"Georgia newspapers carried a story sent out from Washington to the effect that the nominations would be withdrawn. I had given this statement to the reporters, as Senator Phipps had come to my seat in the senate and had told me that he would write to the postmaster-general to withdraw them."

"Therefore, when Senator Phipps came to my seat again, last Saturday afternoon, and placed on my desk a consideration of the affidavits and statements in behalf of the men already mentioned, I was dumfounded."

"Making no comment at the time, I took the matter under careful consideration and was thinking about it during last Sunday."

"The more I thought about it, the less I liked it, because Phipps had shown an utmost disregard of senatorial courtesy and was dishonoring me in the eyes of my constituents."

Charges Phipps' Deceit.

"Already he had been urged by members of the senate and of the house to cease his objection to me in the matter of these appointments. Congressman Vinson had gone to him; Congressman Park had done so and a leading republican senator had urged him to let the matter drop, but he was deaf to all remonstrances, and showed the utmost piggishness in continuing his offensive opposition to a colleague on the committee."

"Let me remind you of what at that time, and I could not understand what the man was driving at, or where he thought he would finally get off."

"It came to my knowledge, though, that his daughter had married a Knight of Columbus, who lives in Augusta, Ga., and this Knight of Columbus was one of the men who hounded me with that criminal prosecution in the district court."

"When you digest this fact about Phipps' son-in-law being one of those Augusta Knights of Columbus, you can understand his interest in Jack Curran, who is also a Knight of Columbus.

Reply Was Hot.

"I went to Phipps' seat in the senate, and asked him what he meant by opening up a correspondence with my constituents behind my back."

"He denies having done so."

"Knowing that he 'had' done so, my reply was swift and hot; my tones were perhaps too loud, but he dared me to follow him out in the corridor and I promptly went with him."

"There are three steps on the east side of the senate door, facing the main entrance."

"I went down the steps, supposing that Phipps was coming; instead, he stopped on the landing, just outside the door, and he showed no inclination to come down to where I was waiting for him."

Admits "Damning."

"I freely admit that I was furiously worked up, and that I 'damned' Phipps in a good old-fashioned way, calling him a tax-dodging millionaire, who was presuming upon his wealth to run over a southern senator. I told him in effect that if he would come down those steps and meet me on the floor, I would knock him down and maul him."

"He then said he would call for protection from the sergeant-at-arms—the sergeant-at-arms has no jurisdiction outside the senate chamber, but the police were in full sight and hearing, and they made no motion whatever to prevent us from clinching."

"Apparently they were on my side for Phipps is very unpopular, except with a few of his millionaire colleagues, on the republican side, and he never condescends to notice the employees in the senate or in the departments."

Calls Phipps Insolent.

"On the contrary, I am as polite to the humblest employee as I am to the highest headed senator; consequently, everyone who expressed an opinion about the incident, thought that I treated Phipps exactly right."

"He had no business to open up a correspondence with my enemies at Tennesse, Dixie and Savannah."

"His conduct was most insolent and unprecedented."

"I told him, in the committee room, that if the case were reversed, and he were objecting to a nominee in Colorado, I would not hesitate a minute in deciding in his favor. I would not have presumed to go over his head and open up a correspondence with his constituents in Colorado."

"The three men to whom I have objected have been writing to Phipps not to me—they have not written me a line, and they have boasted that they would get the appointments over my head. In Savannah, particularly, the statement was made by Denny and Curran that they did not ask me any odds, that Phipps would have them confirmed, in spite of my opposition."

"Denny was not confirmed, and Jack Curran will not be postmaster at Savannah."

COTTON POOL MEN MEET HERE FRIDAY

Representatives of the Cotton Co-operative Marketing association of Georgia, Oklahoma, Mississippi and Texas will gather in Atlanta at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Georgian Terrace hotel, at a conference at which Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation will deliver the principal address. It was announced Tuesday by James S. Floyd, chairman of the Georgia-Florida agency of the corporation.

The conference is expected to draw a representative attendance of bankers from the territory before mentioned and promises to be of the most momentous financial importance to the cotton states. Mr. Floyd asserted. A similar conference was held in Lexington, Ky., last week with the Burley Tobacco Growers' association, at which the war finance corporation advanced that association approximately $4,000,000.

The program for the conference has not as yet been completed. Mr. Floyd stated, but it is expected that reports from the various organizations invited to the conference will be made.

Mr. Meyer, accompanied by Gerard C. Henderson, general counsel for the war finance corporation, and E. H. Harrison, assistant to the managing director, will arrive in Atlanta Thursday evening. At 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, the visitors will be entertained at a luncheon at the Capital City club at which Mr. Floyd will be host.

COMMITTEE NAMED ON HARRIS MEASURE

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN
Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, May 23.—(By Constitution Leased Wire).—A sub-committee of the senate banking and currency committee, composed of Senators Edge, Pepper and Glass, was appointed yesterday by Chairman McLean, to consider the bill introduced by Senator Harris of Georgia to amend the Federal Reserve Act so as to permit banks with a smaller capital than $25,000 to enter the system. Senator Harris says many small banks are now barred, as well as larger banks which are not up to the same capital as required for national banks in cities of certain sizes. The Federal Reserve Board and eight of the twelve governors of the various Federal Reserve banks have approved the bill.

The house committee will also give early consideration to a similar bill introduced several weeks ago by Congressman Gordon Lee.

Queens and Attendants for Festival Week

The first picture of the Progress and Prosperity week queens and attendants whose names were announced Tuesday shows, left to right: Miss Alice Stearns, Miss Ernestine Campbell, Miss Wilma Perdue, Miss Marion Stearns, Miss Mary Malone, Miss Ruby Walker, standing, and Miss Nell Sims.

PROSPERITY QUEEN NAMES ADAIR KING

at the Kimball house tonight, and all those participating are urgently requested to be present.

As a part of the dance festival on Thursday and Friday nights the children's division of the Atlanta Women's club will present an Uncle Remus pageant. Pupils of the following dancing teachers will participate in this entertainment: Miss Anna Mae Coleman, Miss Nellie Sullivan, Miss Norrine Sears, Miss Lucile Wells, and Mrs. C. E. LaFontaine.

The Venetian water carnival will be presented on the same nights and will be a magnificent spectacle of Venetian scenery, music and art. The Griffith Guitars and Mandolin club will furnish the music and the Little theater guild members will furnish a number of unique features.

Railroads Co-operate.

The following Georgia railroads have announced reduced rates of one and one-half round-trip fares from all points in the state, and within a radius of 150 miles of Atlanta: L. & N., N. C. & St. L., Southern, A. & W. F., A. B. & A., Central of Georgia, Georgia railway, Seaboard Air Line. Other roads within the reduced-rate radius granting the same fares are Atlantic Coast Line, Georgia and Florida railway, M. D. & S., Macon and Birmingham, Georgia-Florida and Alabama. A number of these railroads are advertising these reduced fares in the newspapers of the cities reached by their lines, thus assuring a creditable amount of publicity throughout the state and section for the greatest event of its kind ever held in the southeast.

Diving Girls and Fireworks.

A major portion of the entertainment each evening at Lakewood park will be exhibitions by beautiful diving girls. A large number of experts, as well as beautiful divers, have entered the contest and the junior chamber of commerce announces that the entrance list will be closed within the next day or two.

Elaborate displays of fireworks will be on the program for Monday, Wednesday and Saturday nights.

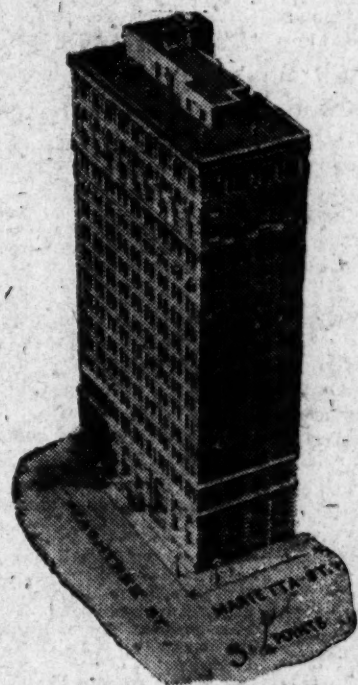

The cowboy rodeo round-up which will be held each afternoon, beginning on Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock at Lakewood, is attracting considerable attention among both young and old. Cheyenne Kiser and a number of his cowboys are shown in a picture which is running this week at the Howard theater.

All details incident to the week of entertainment are progressing nicely is the statement of R. M. Stripling, general chairman, and a tremendous crowd is expected to enjoy the event with Atlanta.

RESTORE CANAAN, JEWS ARE URGED

A stirring appeal for financial assistance to restore Palestine as a Jewish homeland was made at the Jewish synagogue, at the corner of Washington street and Woodward avenue, last night, by Colonel John Henry Patterson, formerly of the British army, and Dr. Alexander Goldstein, former president of the Congress of Ukrainian Jews, and prominent leader in the world-wide Zionist movement.

Following the appeal made by the two speakers, committees of the local organization of Keren Hayesod will conduct a campaign this week among the Jews of Atlanta for funds to be devoted to making Palestine habitable for millions of destitute followers of the faith in eastern Europe.

Colonel Patterson, who commanded a unit of Jewish troops as a British officer during the campaigns in the Holy Land in the world war, related experiences of his troops in wresting the territory from the Turks. He paid glowing tribute to the valor of the Hebrew soldiers. He described the possibilities of Palestine as a territory for colonization, declaring that with irrigation and improved transportation the land could be made to support ten times its present population of about 700,000.

Dr. Goldstein spoke feelingly of the suffering of the Jewish people and eastern Europe, where religious persecution adds to the horrors of revolution and famine. He outlined the program of the Keren Hayesod for restoring the Jewish homeland. A canvass is to be made by committees today and tomorrow.

BIRMINGHAM WEEK FOR BETTER FILMS PRAISED BY JONES

H. Turner Jones, public relations representative of the Southern Enterprises, Inc., returned Tuesday from Birmingham, where he spoke before the Civic Association forum, the Woman's club and the chamber of commerce, opening "Better Films" week.

"Birmingham is the first southern city to hold a better films week," stated Mr. Jones, "with the sole purpose of creating a larger clientele for better screen productions, and they are meeting with splendid success."

The movement is sponsored by city officials and being supported by every civic organization in the city.

Mr. Jones has recently completed trips into Florida, South Carolina, and points in Georgia, and he declared that "the motion picture industry is a splendid business promoter and the American industry is usually the last to feel a depression and the first to respond to any improvement in conditions. We have perfect faith in the future and are going ahead with plans for expansion and improvements to meet stabilization."

Mob Cheated Of Victim When Auto Collide

Irwinton, Ga., May 23.—An automobile accident early this morning cheated a Wilkinson county mob of Jim Denson, 20, a negro, who had been dragged from the local jail a few minutes before he was put to death by mob violence for a crime he is alleged to have committed three years ago.

At dusk Sheriff Player, of Wilkinson, and his posse, aided before, reported the negro surrounded near Sandy creek, four miles south of this place, and his recapture was expected during the night. Officers are satisfied Denson escaped the mob, he having been seen and identified four times during the day.

The negro's escape shatters mob legend in Georgia. "Never before," it is believed, has a man staged a getaway from angry men en route to a scene selected for vengeance. Many intended victims have been rescued by sheriffs and other officers.

Twice Sentenced.
Denson was believed to be attempting to get to Macon. He is said to have expressed a desire to surrender there so he might be lodged in a "mumbo-jumbo" jail.

The negro has been twice sentenced to death, the latest sentence having been imposed by Judge James B. B. here yesterday, the court setting the escape of June 13. Two carpenters arrived this morning to build a gallows, but their job has been cancelled indefinitely.

Details of the escape of the negro leaked out late this afternoon when officers of this county were notified of the escape of Denson and asked to aid in the search for the negro.

Cars Collide.
Denson was being carried in automobile from the jail, which had been stormed at 2 o'clock, to the place where he was accused of attacking a white woman three years ago, when the automobile crashed into another machine.

The men were thrown through the windshield of the automobile and the others, such as they were, were thrown out, discovered that he was free and ran.

Members of the mob made no report of the escape of the negro until several hours had passed. Denson wore no prison stripes.

DISAPPOINTED LOVE NOT ACCIDENT CAUSE

Continued improvement in the condition of Miss Lucy Butler, a student at Girls' High school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Butler of 84 Page street, who fell from a fire escape at the school building Tuesday morning, was reported by attending physician at the Georgia Baptist hospital late Tuesday night.

Miss Butler stated that she slipped and fell to the ground, twenty-five feet below, in some unexplained manner. The report that Miss Butler had jumped from the first escape as the result of a love affair was denied by relatives who state that her engagement is to be announced in Sunday's paper.

It was thought at first that Miss Butler had received severe internal injuries but it was discovered late Tuesday night that she was not the case, and that no bones were broken.

FILMS COMMITTEE TO MEET THURSDAY

A special meeting of the better films committee of Atlanta will be held Thursday at 12:30 p. m. in the rainroom of the Ansley hotel. Mrs. B. M. Boykin, chairman of the committee, will preside.

A number of special features will come before the committee, including the discussion and adoption of by-laws and the different assignments of the work of the various subcommittees. A special committee to review pictures will be appointed.

Mrs. R. F. McCormack, president of the Parent-Teacher association, new chairman of motion pictures for the Atlanta Women's club, will make plans for work along this line. The boys and girls matinee will be the subject for discussion.

MISSION IN WINDOW AT ATLANTA STORE

Davis and Freeman are showing in their windows this week a reproduction of an old California mission that is attracting a great deal of attention.

The reproduction is that of the famous San Luis Rey mission, founded at Oceanside, Calif., in 1779, and said to be the most beautiful of all the California missions.

The reproduction is exact, and portrays most graphically the romance of the early days in the wilderness, and the part the early settlers played in blazing the trails that were later to be developed into some of the beauty spots of the world.

Davis and Freeman have been specializing on window decorations for some months, and their displays have attracted a great deal of favorable comment.

COMPANY "F" DRILL FOR A PRIZE MEDAL

Prize competition for a gold medal to be awarded to the best drilled member of company F, 122d infantry, of the Georgia national guard, will be held on the third floor of the armory Tuesday night, May 30, at 8:30 o'clock.

On the occasion will include Major Oley B. Mitchell, Major Forville McWhorter, Captain Charles A. Wright, Major Asa W. Candler, Jr., Captain Basil Stockbridge, Captain Eugene H. E. Schmidt and Lieutenant Edwin Booth.

The officers of company F are Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr., captain; H. A. Heins, first lieutenant; Hugh M. Butler, second lieutenant, and Hooper Alexander, Jr., first sergeant.

Freed of Robbery, But Held as Drunk In Auto Ride Case

Lester M. Davis, J. C. Burroughs, Otis Stevens and Curtis Powell, who had charges of robbery preferred against them by Miss Mary Dodd and Mrs. Thelma DuBoise as the result of an automobile ride in Decatur last week, were freed of the robbery charge but were held to the state courts under $200 bonds each charged with drunk and disorderly. The two women who preferred the charges were also required to give $200 bond by Justice of the Peace C. L. Partillo, who conducted the preliminary hearing at Decatur Tuesday.

Miss DuBoise, who charged that she was beaten and robbed by the four men, will not be allowed to stand trial in Decatur county at the present time as she will be given a hearing in municipal court Friday charged with failing to pay her board at the Wilmoir hotel.

FAMOUS PASTOR PRAISES SOUTH

In his honor by Dr. Joseph Jacobs at the Burns cottage.

"It is conditions," Dr. Straton said, "in these days of materialism, commercialism and utilitarianism to preserve the ideals and homely philosophy of Robert Burns; to keep the altar burning and perpetuate the home love, the chivalry toward womanhood, the element of reverence, the respect for country and humanity as exemplified in the poems of Burns."

Details of the home in Atlanta Tuesday night. Ministers, lawyers, physicians, business men, workmen, artisans and financiers threw off its mantle of their calling and met again in a reunion of congenial souls.

The history of the club for more than a century was retold and in the telling of the story of Atlanta for the same time was interpreted.

Recalls Boyhood Here.
Dr. Straton delivered the principal address of the evening and he devoted his speech largely to an appeal to the people of the south to stand steadfast in the ideal and traditions of their section of the country which, he said, were the same as the ideals of Burns, and to reminiscences of the days he was a barefooted boy in Atlanta and of his early career spent here.

"No matter where I may live Atlanta will always be home to me," Dr. Straton declared.

Dr. Jacobs was host at the dinner and introduced Hamilton Douglas, Sr., as toastmaster. Mr. Douglas made a short talk and introduced the speakers of the evening who were Dr. Straton, Mayor James L. Key, Judge Marcus Beck, of the supreme court; John Graham, clerk of the supreme court; former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, Donald M. Bain, Walter McElreath and Judge R. B. Russell.

During the evening many old Scotch songs were sung and several Scotch dances were given. Dr. Jacobs, Alex Meier and Donald Bain responded with some quaint and humorous Scotch recitations. One of the features of the evening was the reunion of the five men who were present at the original dinner held twenty-six years ago, when the Burns club was founded.

Dr. Straton told of revisiting his old home in West End, recalling many stories of his early life in that part of the city; spoke of his feeling recently that he must visit Atlanta again, and of his interest in the club which he attended, and praised the principles upon which the Burns club was founded.

Burns and the South.
Continuing, Dr. Straton outlined the principles underlying all the poems written by Robert Burns, and declared that nowhere on the American continent are the principles more alive today than they are in the south. He said the club which was formed to perpetuate these principles was more than a club, that it was an institution.

An old-fashioned Scotch dinner was served which was prepared under the direction of Mrs. Robert Murray.

Among those present as guests of Dr. Straton were Dr. Straton, Mayor Key, former Governor Dorsey, Judge Marcus Beck, Judge Richard R. Russell, Hamilton Douglas, Sr., John W. Graham, Dr. M. B. Bain, Y. P. Kine, Manning Goldsmith, Paul Stevenson, Thomas Soergers, Robert McWhorter, Robert Murray, A. A. Meier, Robert McDonald, Henry Harmon, Walter McElreath, H. H. Cabanis, A. S. Taylor, J. Frank Beck, James Carlisle, A. F. McIntire, Dr. John O. Swan, A. W. Browning, H. C. Reid, E. J. Womersley, Thomas Scott, Captain Stone, Jack Keen, David Proctor, Arthur Craig and Rev. Russell Smith.

The remainder of the mountain trip was successful. The old man, Parker, had turned from the main road into the narrow trail that led toward his cabin on the rim. His thoughts on the trip had been of the rain upon which his one-eyed horse was so dependent and lifted his hands to make sure it was fastened securely.

An explosion as one of a small canon's discharge almost deafened him. As his left shoulder slipped a hail of shot. When Parker had righted his groggy horse, he found himself staring into the double barrels of a shotgun, evidently the source of the manonade. But the attack was not repeated, since the holder of the weapon proved to be the hardwood fork of a hickory that marked a trail run. Dismounting, he investigated the mantrap—shotgun fixed to cover trail, hair triggers, improvised ladder of cord so strong that advance of man and beast must fire the double charge. Except for the lapse of discipline which had allowed the horse to slide from the road's center, Parker's head or chest in all probability would have received the hail of slugs.

And except for the amethystine brooch that discipline would have been maintained.

Parker's trip, next day, to Dismal Gap was successful in the obtaining, from the hanger's only member of the bar, two documents which, when signed and witnessed, would have a decidedly legal force. There occurred also an unsought interview with Aunt Hootie Platt. It was after she had secured his promise to be present at Dismal Gap's forthcoming annual carnival, which the dry meant should be a consecration service honoring the dry vote of the state, that she put a second and more difficult request: "You must make a friend of Rex Currie. I hope—I think he will soon become a declared convert of the dries. To be sure, he has been bootlegging for Old Tom, but not for love of the pernicious calling itself. Although he's been setting up to Verney Metcalf for years, he admitted to me the other night that he was about ready to give up all, even her. Rex has sold out his property and is about to move away. But before he goes—well, he knows the exact location of Old Tom's still, so make friends with him."

Parker went straight to the Metcalf home. Scarcely had he lifted his foot to the first step when Old Tom and Sandry appeared in the doorway, both in shirtsleeves.

"Mr. Metcalf"—Parker crossed the porch and faced them squarely—"your daughter asked me not to repeat my call of the other day. I promised her I would not and intended to oblige her. I hope, however, that she and you will excuse the breach when you know why I made it."

From his breast pocket he produced the two legal documents procured in Dismal. The appearance of Vernaluska in the lighted doorway that gave from one side of the living room had caused him to make his words deliberate, distinct. "While in Dismal this morning I had the local lawyer draw up certain papers transferring the mountain known as Grubly Bald from Rex Currie to me and from me to you. Not until these are signed before witnesses will the transaction be legally binding."

"It won't, eh?" Tom's gauged hands outstretched, shook as they seized and unfolded the blank deeds. The attention of the three was diverted from the caller; the old man's to a mumbling parrot, his children's to an anxious regard of him. "Once I could get right and title," he muttered between phrases. "H-m, that sounds business-like—to have and to hold."

"If I actually owned the Bald I needn't never fear the law no more—never no more."

"There's no hindrance now to your owning the mountain, sir, except Currie's signature to the first of those papers—which is a under contract to give me." Parker's interruption was in as brisk a tone as he could command.

"So Verney's done told us. She allows you ain't what folks think you." "Nor am I. Is he around—Currie?"

"Rex'll be nagging in presently—he don't exactly like to miss a meal." Still clutching the unsigned deeds, the old fellow peered a moment straight into the dark eyes of the younger man. "Stranger," he said, "we'll be just sitting down to table. Likely you'd best break biscuits with us."

"I should be glad to do so for several reasons," Parker accepted. "One, that it will give me opportunity to share some information with you which I think you will consider important."

"Nowise as important as getting these here papers signed. Biscuits first, then Rex, then your information—that's my program."

"Whenever you're ready to listen, sir."

"Tom," Vernaluska broached when the meal was under way. "Sandy and I are agreed that it's right pretty of Mr. Parker to buy the title to Grubly Bald from Rex, just to sell it over to us—ain't we, Sandy?"

"We are sure," the younger Metcalf nodded, although there was qualification in his grudging tone. "What I can't see is why he's done gone and done it."

"He had two reasons, as I see it," the girl continued in the manner of one making a foreplanned speech. "One was to give us practical proof that he isn't the renegade he's considered heretofore. The other—" She paused, drew a deep breath, then plunged. "Mr. Parker and I are good enough friends that I told him you had promised to quit stilling once you owned the Bald. Tommie, are you going to quit? Are you meaning to keep that promise?"

"Emphatically," the leonine head nodded. "Once I get this signing done good and proper, once I have the cash in hand for what's stilling now, I'll never make no more. You know, Verney, that my word's bed-rock."

"Oh, Tommie—oh, Tom!" There was a clench in her voice, but her eyes gleamed in the lamp-light like tears. "How long will it take with all of us working?"

Her question brought Parker an idea—one that appeared at the moment as the superlative idea of his life. "Wouldn't an extra hand facililate things?" he asked generally, then faced the old man in particular. "Mr. Metcalf, what would you think of hiring me?"

"Hiring you?" Tom echoed his amazed.

"Yes. Why not? Oh, you mustn't think I want to get my hands on the stuff, drinking I've given up once and for all. It would allow you absolutely that I am not a renegade. If you people would take me in the same jail sentence would allow me as the rest of you in a case of trouble. By hiring me, Metcalf, you would be able to dispense with the services of Rex Currie who, I have excellent reason to believe, is no friend of you or yours. Today in Dismal Gap, I was authoritatively informed that he was ingratiating himself with the dries. He wants to clear himself of the charge of boot-legging for you, and has planned his getaway. Just what he is lingering for, I don't know, but I expect trouble from him and so may you."

A scornful laugh from the doorway sounded startlingly. Rex Currie stood just outside, the look of him suggesting that he had slipped through the living room in time to overhear the denunciation of himself. "So, you expect trouble from me?" he demanded of Parker. "Well, for once, you're right, you revenue sneak! Looks like I've come in good time to start it here and now. What have you—us to say about this?"

From the inner pocket of his coat, Currie took a letter, stepped toward the lamp, leaned to read the superscription. "This bill-doo came in on today's stage and looked important enough that Asa Simms allowed I'd best take a look at it. Listen, you Metcalf simp, to the reading on the envelope: 'Mr. Calvin A. Parker, care of Mrs. Hootie Platt, Dismal Gap, N. C. Look, you-all, at what is on the upper left-hand corner—printed there:'

If not delivered in five days
Return to Deputy Collector,
UNITED STATES INTERNAL REVENUE,
Federal Building, New York City.
His confidence rose as he noted the reflex on the staring group. "But that's not all. On the other corner—see!" The Metcalfs peered to read:

For Official Business Only
Penalty for Private Use
In Evading Postage
Three Hundred Dollars.

Currie laughed again. "It ain't likely—not with that fine—that anybody would send a society note inside this envelope. Now, are you ready to see the slick fellow who sent it?"

The out-nerthor found five hostile faces turned his way instead of one. "The letter is easily explained," he declared. "It is undoubtedly from the man who sent me to the Blue Ridge."

"You don't deny, then, that you were sent?" Currie demanded.

"Old Tom wouldn't deny it. 'Do you spect we-all didn't know that the dries had begged for a slick to come down and clean us out?'" Parker reached out and seized the envelope. "This letter, you know, before opening, is of a strictly personal nature. That is foretold by the postage being paid on it. Don't you see the canceled stamp? It is for a friend of mine who works for the internal revenue service, Spencer Pope, by name."

"Spencer Pope!" With a subdued glow, Old Tom nodded upon the name. "And you admit he sent you to the sticks?"

"Why shouldn't I admit it? He is, however, only a personal friend. That I can demonstrate best by reading his letter aloud. I won't even glance it through first, which ought to show that I have no fear of its contents."

He ripped open the envelope and unfolded the sheets within. "It is from Spence, as I knew it would be. Listen:

Dear Cal: We're leaving tonight for Asheville—Mrs. Brainard, Sylvia and myself. Mrs. B. is interested in a place for sale near there, and insists on my advice as an original Tar-heel. So we'll all drop in to see you. It seems a way of killing several birds with the rock of one railroad fare. We're naturally interested in how many birds you've killed while there. Why your supercation in not reporting through the mails? Are you overcoming the dries?"

I hear they're pulling off the annual carnival on Friday next. So we'll take the stage over from the railroad that day, arriving, I believe, about noon. Sylvia says that in case you are trying to hide your real identity, as well as your mission in the Blue Ridge, under the disguise of a beard, you'd better shave for the occasion. Hoping for a great report.

SPENCER.

Although the news in this characteristic effusion was a surprise to Parker and the way it was put most unfortunate, he now looked up with what confidence he could muster. "There's nothing official in that letter, as I predicted. Here, pass it around and see for yourselves."

An angry laugh sounded from the living-room door, where Sandy had planted himself. "We-all don't need to pass it. We see a plenty. Rex, you're agin' the kitchen door. Lucky you're wearing your gun. I got one on the stoop, stranger, so don't try to escape that way!"

"I'm not try to escape," Parker retorted. "I'm trying to explain; let me convince you that I'm—"

"You've done convinced us a-plenty," Old Tom put the verdict. He laid his huge hands upon the bank deeds left there. "I'm going to give you a chance, Parker, to make your getaway. I'll call these boys off on the road if he hesitates."

Parker understood. "I'm obliged for the reminder." He nodded to Metcalf; then turned to the hill-billy. "The object of my present visit, Currie, is to get your signature to the deed transferring that mountain farm from you to me. You have cashed the New York draft?"

"I sure have—trusting you none!"

"Not I, you, so you're to sign up tonight."

"Ain't objecting, am I?"

"If you'll provide pen and ink, Mr. Metcalf," Parker suggested, "we'll legalize the transfer."

The deed signed, Parker blotted the ink with the lamp's heat, and pocketed the document. "Now," he said, "we can go to the signing of the second deed."

"The second deed?" Currie demanded.

"I saved you a lot of work, come, see how nice it looks."

Piedmont Driving Club

An event which annually ushers in the summer season at the Piedmont Driving club marks the beginning of a series of lively summer entertainments was the "formal opening" on Tuesday evening when a dinner-dance was held on the terrace of the club.

The terrace is unusually attractive, encircled with its tall hedge of evergreen shrubs, and it made a very pretty setting with its festoons of softly shaded lights for the lovely costumes of the women present.

Each of the small tables held in the center a French basket of sweet peas and gladioli in pastel shades. The details of the elaborately appointed dinner carried out a color scheme of pink and white. The cakes and mints were embossed in pink flowers and the ices were in pink and white.

Preceding dinner a business meeting of the club was held and officers were elected for the coming year.

James H. Nunnally was again chosen head of the organization, defeating Daniel McDougall, who had also been nominated. Edwin J. Johnson was elected vice president, and Mason Martin, C. C. McGhee, and Dr. LeRoy Childs named directors with the president and vice president.

About five hundred guests were present and the occasion was marked by social brilliancy and enjoyment.

Congenial Parties.

One of the largest groups dining together were Mr. and Mrs. William L. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Kiser, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Bucknell, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Y. W. C. A. Club
To Give Vaudeville.

The Blue Ribbon club of the Young Women's Christian association will give an evening of vaudeville at the Y. W. C. A. Postoffice Arcade, Monday evening, May 29, at 8 o'clock.

Admission will be 25 cents. The performance will be typically vaudeville with burlesque on what is usually seen on such programs. There will be a group of dancers in an artistic act to be led by Hazel Jones, followed by the usual vaudeville skit. The Tech Glee club will contribute a number and there will be Irish dances and songs.

Miss Frances Powell is assisting the Blue Ribbons in putting on their show. The object is to raise a fund for sending club delegates to the Y. W. C. A. south Atlantic field industrial conference to be held this summer at Lake Junaluska, N. C.

The Blue Ribbon club is a member of the Y. W. C. A. club federation.

The business and industrial clubs of the federation are working as a body to raise money to send their club delegates to Lake Junaluska.

G. N. and I. Club
To Honor President.

A very interesting event of the week will be the luncheon to be given Saturday by the G. N. & I. College club at the Piedmont hotel in honor of Dr. M. M. Parks, of Milledgeville, Ga., president of the G. N. & I. college.

An informal reception will be tendered Dr. Parks from 2 to 3 o'clock, at the Piedmont hotel, and it is earnestly desired that all who are planning to attend the luncheon at 3 o'clock will avail themselves of this opportunity to renew their acquaintance with Dr. Parks and help to honor one who is noted as one of Georgia's leading educators.

Plans are being completed to serve a hundred guests and the tickets are selling rapidly. Those who wish to make reservations are requested by the committee in charge to communicate with Miss Lucile Wright, 441 Greenwood avenue, Hemlock 544-J; Miss Helen Pace, Smyrna, Ga.; Mrs. F. W. Wells, Hapeville, Ga., East Point 183.

Mrs. Wolfe
Entertains At
Afternoon Party

An elaborate social affair of Tuesday afternoon was the bridge-ten party at the home of Mrs. Joseph B. Wolfe at the Wincoff hotel.

Beautiful garden flowers, Dorothy Perkins roses and daisies were effectively arranged in baskets and vases, and formed the artistic decorations.

Mrs. Wolfe wore an afternoon gown of black Canton crepe, embroidered in steel and black beads. Her large hat was of black lace.

Sixty guests were invited.

Mrs. D. L. Wise
Heads Formwalt
P. T. A. Club

At the last regular meeting of the Formwalt Street school Parent-Teacher association, for the scholastic year 1921-22, the following officers were unanimously elected: President, Mrs. D. L. Wise; vice president, Mrs. L. J. Rimsky; treasurer, Mrs. J. C. De Loach; secretary, Mrs. A. C. Frost.

The reports of the following committees for the year's work were read and were very satisfactory and most encouraging.

Report of better films committee, Mrs. L. J. Rimsky.

Sunshine committee, Mrs. Theo. Ashton.

Press committee, Mrs. E. Mandl.

Social committee, Mrs. J. C. Glover.

Nomination committee, Mrs. McArthur.

Lunch counter, Mrs. L. R. Sams, principal.

A rare treat was afforded us when the president, Mrs. D. L. Wise, read her report of the parent-teacher convention held at Columbus, Ga. It was a most delightful paper and it helped each one to realize more fully the growing need of the parent-teacher organization.

The president also gave her report for the year and it was very complete and interesting.

It was announced that the "Golden Jubilee Pageant," of the establishment of the Atlanta public schools, would be held at the auditorium Friday and Saturday, and the president urged that Formwalt be well represented.

Friday, May 26, will be open house at Formwalt and a cordial invitation is extended to all patrons and friends.

The graduation exercises of the seventh grade will be held Friday, June 2, at 10 o'clock. Diplomas will be awarded to each graduate, and singing exercises will follow.

The association unanimously indorses Mrs. J. E. Andrews as candidate for regional director for Alabama, Georgia and Florida, of the Parent-Teacher associations.

The association voted to affiliate with the City Federation of clubs.

Attention was called to "Made in Georgia Week," and the association was urged to wear, eat and purchase only Georgia products during that week. The club has decided to hold a formal social meetings during the summer.

In deep appreciation of all that the most respected principal, Mrs. L. R. Sams, has been to the club, her inspiration to the children and the association, a gift of a beautiful string of pearls was presented to her.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT HE REALLY THINKS

If a member of your household suddenly went insane and during the period of his insanity said all sorts of wild things, would you store those things up in your mind, as an index of his true character and let them mean more to you than what he said while in a normal state?

Of course not!

That's too ridiculous to answer, isn't it?

And yet a young woman wrote me not long ago telling me that she had discovered what her husband really thought of her. He had gotten terribly angry over something and said the most terrible things. Now she knew that all the nice things he had said were just pretense and the other was what he was really thinking all the time.

"Beside Himself." She seemed determined to take what he said in a moment when he was not himself against what he said in the months when he was himself.

Of course he wasn't insane but isn't violent anger next door to insanity? We talk of anyone being "beside himself" with anger. Isn't that a recognition of the fact that he steps out of his personality just as an insane person does?

Anger Is Controllable. To be sure, anger is controllable and insanity is not. I hasten to add that for the benefit of those who might try to claim exemption from blame for getting into fits of temper by saying that they were beside themselves and could not help it.

That's not what I am trying to say at all. They can help getting into that state unless they are insane and need forcible restriction. What I am trying to drive home is this. They are not themselves when they get into the state and what they say is surely not a better index of their feelings and their character than what they say when they are in an ordinary state of mind.

And yet how often we store up things said in such moments as what he or she "really thinks!"

A Gadget. A woman whom I know resigned from two clubs that represented her main diversions, because her husband in a fit of temper accused her of being a gadget, never wanting to stay home or do any work. Yet she knew perfectly well that when he was himself he was proud of the part she played in the clubs and delighted to have her enjoy them.

Of course people ought not to have fits of temper and say things that they don't mean. But most of us sometimes do. And we can get a lot more happiness and peace in life if instead of storing up the things said in anger as grievances, we put them in their proper place in the scheme of things.

Cox College Graduates Entertained at Dinner

On Tuesday evening President William S. Cox and Mrs. Alice Cox Crenshaw entertained at dinner in honor of the senior class of Cox college. Governor Thomas Hardwick and Mrs. Hardwick, who is herself an alumna of Cox college, the board of trustees of Cox college, and their wives and the members of the Cox faculty were invited to meet the graduates, and were also honor guests at the dinner.

The spacious dining hall was elaborately decorated in vase of spring flowers, and on the banquet tables were baskets of sweet peas in red and white, the college colors.

The four-course menu was served by the underclassmen, assisted in white. Miss Henrietta Oliver, the president of the senior class, acted as toast mistress of the occasion. Miss Lucile

Wells gave a toast to President Cox, to which he offered an appropriate response; Miss Jeannette Juhon, to the guests of the evening, to which Governor Hardwick responded; Miss Mary D. Winfield responded, and Miss Ruby Hogan to the college, after which the entire student body rose and sang "Alma Mater." The seniors sang in a most pleasing manner "My Ain Folk," and the seniors sang their class song.

Among the guests of the evening were Governor and Mrs. Hardwick, Judge and Mrs. J. W. Humphries, Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hawkins, Mrs. J. F. Alexander of Lexington, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Daniel of Barbour, Fla., Mrs. H. Oliver of Georgetown, S. C., Mrs. E. Morgan of Savannah, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Carter of Greenville, S. C.

"He flunked in Latin"—but don't blame your child too much until you know the reason. Children oftentimes fail to win promotion because of defective vision. They can't concentrate—too close application of their eyes is uncomfortable.

Before you pass judgment, bring your child in and have his or her eyes examined. One can overcome a slight defect of the eyes with properly fitted glasses.

Miss Ashcraft's Buffet Supper Honors Seniors

Miss Rebecca Ashcraft entertained at supper Tuesday evening at her home in Druid Hills in compliment to the graduates of Washington seminary, preceding the senior class exercises at the school.

The beautiful home was elegantly arranged, with vases and baskets of garden flowers.

The hostess wore a becoming frock of orchid taffeta, trimmed with French flowers.

Mrs. Lee Ashcraft was gowned in white lace over satin.

Miss Ashcraft was assisted in entertaining by her mother, and two members from each class at the seminary.

The guests included the members of the senior class and members of the faculty of Washington seminary.

Uncle Remus Tales In Pantomime Form At Piedmont Park

An open-air performance of Uncle Remus stories in the form of pantomime is the unique and interesting promise in the announcement of the Carolyn Cobb Dramatic club for Thursday afternoon at Piedmont park.

Miss Cobb wrote the scenarios some time ago for the Uncle Remus Memorial association, and they were presented for the entertainment of the Ad Men of the World at the Auditorium.

The Uncle Remus association considers them valuable in making even more popularly known these wonderful folk tales and calling attention to their place in American literature.

So graphic are the pantomimes, by the way, that the Ad Men from everywhere who were not familiar with the stories declared that they understood their meaning easily as revealed in this form. For lovers of Uncle Remus, they emphasize the charm of the tales.

On Thursday they will be presented as a benefit entertainment for the Woman's auxiliary, St. Philip's Cathedral.

Luncheon Honors Normal Graduates

A charming occasion was a luncheon given at the Atlanta Normal Training school recently in honor of the graduating class. The junior class were the hostesses and they showed much taste and ingenuity in the decorations and program.

Besides the guests of honor the faculty of the school were invited.

The tables, arranged in the form of a cross, were beautifully decorated with vines and roses. The school colors of blue, white and gold formed the basis of the color scheme for the entire luncheon. The place cards were blue butterflies with white and gold striped wings. Yellow baskets held the bonbons and on each basket was a white scroll tied with blue ribbon, a diploma indicating the particular course in which each senior excelled.

The luncheon courses carried out the color scheme, even to the little cakes covered with white icing and on top the letters A. N. T. S. in blue. The cream was yellow with a blue "22" in each slice.

A delightful program of toasts, speeches, and songs and rhymes, was carried out during the luncheon.

After luncheon there was a delightful impromptu program. Miss McDaniel gave an impetuous dance and Miss Clyburne gave several vocal selections.

Who's Who in the Story.

Diana Langley, with an amazing amount of "time" at 20, confessed her love for Stephen Dale, who has been for years devoted to Diana's aunt.

Marjorie Langley, a noted beauty. Her pride wounded, Diana motored to New York and married one of her suitors.

Alex Leigh, a young navy officer, who proved to have decided ideas on witty duty. Inspired by the example of Ted Saunders, an old flame of hers, who gallantly married.

Sylvia Bonner because he saw she loved him. Diana decided never to let Alex know that he did not have her love. Alex came upon Dale and Diana talking confidentially and was instantly jealous.

She is welcomed into the family by the admiral, who has a weakness for Marjorie, but an incident occurring at the same time at luncheon at the Plaza makes her less in favor of marriage than ever.

Her family came to town to meet their new son-in-law and Diana was more than over-impressed with their unhappy marriage. For a stronger bond with her mother because of their mutual unhappiness, she confesses her love for Dale.

CHAPTER XXI A Last Farewell

Marjorie Langley and the admiral were among the crowd that saw the bride pair off to California.

To Diana's immense relief, Stephen Dale, was not present. Marjorie said something vaguely about his taking a run down to the Virginia capes in his yacht.

There were flowers from him, though. Great golden roses with hearts of pale flame that turned Diana's hair to pure copper when she bent her head to lay her lips against the petals of one.

Alex Leigh thought it a pretty gesture, and the admiral termed it a graceful compliment to the absent sender, but Marjorie's eyes narrowed and her carefully rouged lips were compressed into a thin line.

For she had caught the quiver of Diana's chin before it was buried in the velvet heart of the rose.

But she did not know that the sight of the roses brought back vividly to Diana a twilight drawing room with windows opening on a garden bathed in the light of the sun's afterglow and air fragrant with the scent of dying roses whose golden petals gleamed palely in the descending dusk.

Conscious suddenly that she was the cynosure of eyes, Diana flushed and laughed a trifle ashamed. Then she tucked the rose into a fold of Marjorie's bodice and jabbed it with a pin.

"It belongs to you by rights," she said demurely, "don't you think so, Trudy? Let me see if I cannot find a bad for Uncle Art."

She smiled mischievously at the admiral and reached up to fasten a flower in his coat lapel. When she had finished, she found her hands imprisoned.

"Remember, what I said. If this nephew of mine doesn't behave himself you just let me know, and we'll ship him off to sea for discipline. How's that, Alex? I rather guess you'll watch your step, eh boy?"

"You bet, I will," grinned Alex, a chap that's only just married. Diana will never have cause to report me, I'll promise you that, sir."

At the last minute, Sylvia and Ted Saunders came flying through the crowded station. Ted was trying valiantly to make way for his petite bride through the ranks of hurrying homeward-bound commuters despite the handicap of two hat boxes and several minor parcels.

"Not aifs for Diana," cried Marjorie in dismay, "her luggage is all aboard."

"Gifts for Diana, nothing," exclaimed Sylvia breathlessly. "Those bundles are the results of a full day's shopping. And I took my lord and master along in spite of his protests to hand out the cheques and gather in the plunder."

She cast a mocking glance at Ted, who was looking sheepish and trying ineffectually to gather all the parcels into one hand and put them behind his back.

"But you could have had them sent, child!" protested Marjorie.

"Not to Long Island, if you want to wear your outfit tonight," replied Sylvia practically. "Ted, don't tilt that flowered hat box—you'll ruin the feather on your gorgeous hat."

"You surely don't intend to wear two hats at once," insisted Marjorie. "One could have been sent, anyway."

Keeping Him on the Leash.
Sylvia sent her a glance which plainly indicated what she thought about minding other people's business, but she only said airily:

"Oh, I thought it was time to teach Ted to fetch and carry. He's been a gay dog running around without a leash long enough."

Everybody laughed politely, and Ted grinned manfully, and Sylvia kissed Diana.

"It's a shame you have to go away just when the season's starting, but it will be heavenly to spend the winter in California. I'm going to make Ted take me out as soon as Lent starts. If Lieutenant Leigh is away at sea, I'll be glad to stay with you, darling. Good-bye. Take good care of yourself. Come, Ted, we must fly or we'll be late for the Burtons' dinner."

Obediently Ted advanced to make his adieu to Diana. He was still clinging to his parcels, so he could only offer one hand.

They avoided each other's eyes while he muttered some conventional leave-taking, but just as their fingers fell apart Diana raised her lids and met his despairing glance.

For an instance they looked at each other without dissembling.

Ted muttered:

"If only it could have been different, Diana!"

She nodded.

She knew that he was thinking what it would have been if he, and not Alex Leigh, had been at her side receiving the adieu of the crowd.

And she was thinking what it would have been if Alex could have miraculously changed places with Stephen Dale. Suppose it were Alex who was steaming out to sea headed for the Virginia capes and Dale—her husband—facing life westward—with her.

She closed her eyes, momentarily blotting out the vision.

She knew and bese to write me everything you do and all about the interesting people you meet," Marjorie was enjoining her in an aside. "And do give up flirting the way you used to do candy in Lent. It will only get you talked about, and the men who flirt with young married women are horrid beasts anyway, and not worth your time. I'll run out to see you as soon as you're settled. Too bad Stuart dragged your mother back to Nantucket—she'd have given anything to see you off. I should have thrown my mirror at his head if I had been here! However, I wouldn't advise you to try any such tactics with friend husband yonder; that looks cruel and entirely too resolute to try tricks with."

But Diana had ceased to listen. Her eyes were fixed with ever-increasing amazement and disbelief on a tall figure in immaculate flannels who was making his broad-shouldered way through the crowd toward her.

It couldn't be . . . Ted, could he, could he ever mistake that lithe swinging gait?

"I couldn't let you leave without saying—good-bye," said Stephen Dale quietly.

A Club Woman's Views on Hollywood

Mrs. Sharp discusses charge that Hollywood stars are in many instances drug addicts, and denies it most emphatically. Stories about wild bathing parties. Her theory about how Director Taylor met his death.

This is the concluding article by Mrs. Charles J. Sharp on the movie colony at Hollywood. Mrs. Sharp, who is a prominent Alabama club woman, denies the sensational stories about the private lives of the film stars and declares that she has told the truth about Hollywood just as she has seen it.

Top, making an elaborate model of an old-time galleon for use on the screen. Below, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes.

BY MRS. CHARLES J. SHARP.

"You have given the movies a noble white-wash. Were you sent to California by them?"

This is the opening of a recent letter received by me, but it did not upset me.

I am glad that I could give even that much help to people who need it just at this time. I have given you the records, home-life and pen-pictures of some of our best known actors and actresses. If we have those who are not reputable, I am glad to let you know that we have many who are the equal of any city's best citizens.

I was sent by The Birmingham News, to Hollywood, Cal., to investigate and report moving picture conditions as fair, others doubting that I could give to you as I saw them.

If my investigation had been of a different city, my verdict would have been quite different. Since my return, letters have come to me from nearly all classes of people.

Some have been complimentary, some disagreeing, some accepting my version as fair, others doubting that I had seen anything but a set stage, prepared just for me.

I cannot flatter myself to that extent for my coming or going was of little interest to an industry of the vast magnitude of the moving picture industry.

I have been struck with the fact that my critics seem to resent, even have their feelings hurt, that there was so much that was good I found to write of.

There are Here.

It was the dope fiends, wild women and fast parties they wanted to hear of. Well, they are there just as they are here. If one of our prominent physicians is addicted to the dope habit, does it put a stigma on all of the rest of the medical profession?

If one society maid, or woman goes wrong, is all society vile?

If a minister of the gospel is a murderer do we lose respect for Christianity?

In a Birmingham club by accident I stepped into a room where a member was taking a hyperdermic injection. I have never held that club responsible for that member, they probably never suspected that he was addicted to the habit.

California is cursed with the opium habit. The Chinese brought it to our shores and the habit was established long before the name of moving pictures was ever heard of. California has given the habit to some few of the movie people; not the movies to California.

The drug is smuggled into the port of Los Angeles by Chinese, Japanese, British and other vessels. Some of it is manufactured in Philadelphia and St. Louis, sent down to Mexico in a legitimate trade. It is then sent back over the borders into California.

Why Taylor Was Killed.
The United States government has been rather lax in the enforcement of our federal anti-narcotic laws. I was told. Until William Desmond Taylor, a few months ago, got the government to send two officers to break up a dope ring that was gaining an inroad into Mr. Taylor's circle of friends.

There was not a single government anti-narcotic office in Los Angeles. I believe I know the truth of the cause of Taylor's death, or rather the version his best friends gave of it.

The fact that Mr. Taylor was killed for trying to break up the "ring" will probably result in a great clean-up in the dope business of California.

I spent one evening with a social welfare worker whom a minister had directed and advised me to visit. The minister could give me only hearsay, but it was bad enough. He did admit that he rarely saw a picture and had no personal knowledge of a single member of the profession.

Sometimes we wonder the real status of the sinner in the kingdom of religion. From his own statements that preacher had offered no spiritual advice or comfort to those down-trodden sinners.

The welfare worker told me there had been some wild parties. To be exact, they had a record of four. That the Arbuckle party in San Francisco was a fair sample of them, which is natural considering the lead-ership. Nearly all present were respectable, and they were so regarded by the best element of movie people.

So that there had been bathing parties, where if the bathing suit was forgotten, it did not stop the party any more than it stopped parties quite close to New York city. Some such parties contained only men from the movies, yet it was written up as if it were a party of movie stars, leaving the inference that there were prominent women present.

Cocaine is the favorite drug. I was told. That the addicts would gather often for a "snow" party, as they called it, and they speak of going sleighing when they speak of going to these snow, or cocaine parties. There are drug addicts in our movies, and it has blighted the career of several of our prime favorites. But the largest part is among extras—this driftwood of humanity who come from the Mexican quarters.

Now since we really need the movies as badly as they need us, for they do meet a vital need in our nation's entertainment, isn't it up to us to purify rather than condemn moving pictures?

This can be done by demanding fewer sensational, abnormal and sex pictures. Demand that they be true to life, that vice and crime shall not be made prominent or attractive, and depicted only to draw a moral. That they shall not cheapen the sacredness of domestic relations. That love shall not be depicted as a channel for passion, but as the glorious key of life.

Southeastern Conference.

For this purpose the southeastern conference for better films was held in Atlanta, Ga., on the 28th day of April. The better films conference was a great success. Delegates came from Boston to Indianapolis. Over 250 delegates registered.

I received today a very cordial letter from Will H. Hays, thanking me for serving on the resolutions committee of the southeastern conference. He assured me it was his desire to bring about a full co-operation between producers, actors and the public. If this can be done, all unpleasant obstacles can very soon be eliminated.

I have given you glimpses of a home life of some of the most prominent class. If I didn't tell you others, it was because my limited time prevented my seeing all of them. You may ask, "But what about divorcees?"

Yes, they are there, and to be honest, movie people seem to look up to them as an evil rather than as a personal reflection. One writer made an assertion "that nobody in Hollywood knows today who his wife will be tomorrow."

That is unfair and untrue. I Jackson gave me the life story of a Goldwyn star under salary contracts with them. Not one of them had been divorced. I saw and I have in my possession a list of Hollywood divorcees, but not once have I seen a printed list of the stars who have been divorced.

I am not certain that divorce granted more readily in California than in Birmingham. Still, when I hear that Pauline Frederick has been divorced and married three times a Katherine Williams four times, I am confident that it gave me a shock, but if I do know a woman of the East faith who has been to the altar 11 times and is now a widow.

Appreciate Fairness.

I believe the lives of the movie people are surrounded by many temptations, as are all classes of society today, but I am convinced that working for the moving picture industry does not prevent a woman being a virtuous or good woman, and does it prevent a man from being moral, high-class gentleman, nor does it prevent happy homes, with strong normal children.

It was with genuine regret that I bade farewell to Hollywood and its many courtesies, interesting people that I met and who I felt I knew better, for I felt I had each had his or her own distinct personality.

I may not convince those who do not want to be convinced. I may not convert a strongly prejudiced person, but I do hope you will feel closer to movie friends and that you will go to see the recommended pictures and express publicly to the managers presenting these your approval or disapproval, as the case may be.

It was with genuine regret that I bade farewell to Hollywood and its many courtesies, interesting people that I met and who I felt I knew better, for I felt I had each had his or her own distinct personality.

I may not convince those who do not want to be convinced. I may not convert a strongly prejudiced person, but I do hope you will feel closer to movie friends and that you will go to see the recommended pictures and express publicly to the managers presenting these your approval or disapproval, as the case may be.

Appreciate Fairness.

I believe the lives of the movie people are surrounded by many temptations, as are all classes of society today, but I am convinced that working for the moving picture industry does not prevent a woman being a virtuous or good woman, and does it prevent a man from being moral, high-class gentleman, nor does it prevent happy homes, with strong normal children.

WILLIAMS STEALS BABE RUTH'S ACT

New York, May 23.—Ken Williams grabbed Babe Ruth's act when the St. Louis slugger slammed a home run into the upper right field stand at the Polo Grounds Tuesday, scoring two runners ahead, his twelfth home run of the season to date, as against Ruth's lone homer, acquired in Monday's game. The Babe went to bat four times Tuesday afternoon, but the only time he reached first base was when Urban Shocker passed ed him in the third inning, due to wildness. There were two out and nobody was aboard at the time. Ruth died on base.

The Babe was called out on strikes in the first inning when he advanced to the plate with one man on base and one out. In the fifth, with one man on base, he made the third out with an infield fly. Ruth was out at first in the eighth. There was one out and the bags were empty at the time.

Home Run Baker, of the Yanks, got a home run and a triple that might have been a homer for a faster man. George Sisler, of the Browns, also made a home run.

SUBURBAN LEAGUE WANTS UMPIRES

The Suburban league, composed of East Point, College Park, Riverdale and Fairburn, desires the service of a good umpire to officiate in ball games every Saturday afternoon. Will pay $3 for each game. Call Martin, secretary, phone E. P. 753.

WHEN BENNY LEONARD wins the welterweight title—that is if he does, his passing from the light weight class will probably put this one-time 133-pound division back where it rightfully belongs. When they boosted the weight ante, how do you suppose Packey McFarland, one of the greatest fighters that ever stepped into a ring, felt. McFarland could have made 135 or 130 and been as strong as an ox, but at 133 he was about as hefty as an unstarved shrimp.

With Leonard moving into the welterweight ranks—it may put the lightweight crown on the rugged locks of Johnny Dundee, who seems to be a real lightweight.

IN LOOKING back over the contributions of Great Britain to the prize ring one is forced to admit that for building up false alarms, John Bull holds the title undisputed. Only three fighters have come out of England in a long, long time that have made much of an impression, Owen Moran, Johnny Summers and Jimmie Wilde. The first two never reached the championship classes, and from the real inside Wilde has been treated rather roughly by several of the smaller men of class from these shores.

NEW YORK, MAY 23.—Because the matches would be pure commercial propositions with no sporting element, the New Jersey boxing commission has decided that Jack Dempsey will not be permitted to fight either Jess Willard or Harry Wells, the New Orleans negro in the Rickard bowl at Jersey City. Louis J. Massano, chairman of the commission, announced the decision.

The change of heart is understood to be due to the fact that Governor Edwards is now a candidate for the United States senate. Although Edwards said some time ago that Dempsey and Willard would be welcome in Jersey, the intimation was recently conveyed to Tex Rickard that the political situation now renders this promotion undesirable.

"Willard is at least 40 years old," Messano said, "and it is absurd to believe he is physically able to provide a match for Dempsey." There does not seem to be any genuine public sentiment for a match between Dempsey and Willard. Canada can have that kind of a championship match if she wants it.

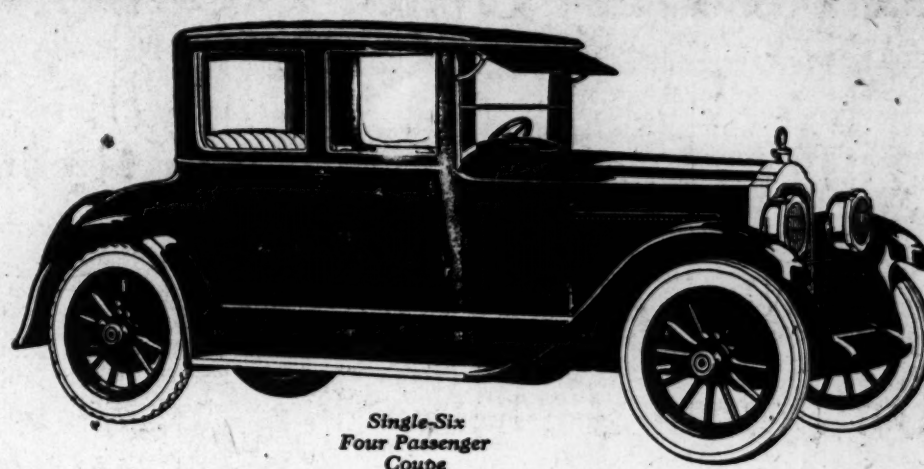

The commission thus upset fairly mature plans of Tex Rickard, Willard and Jack Kearns. Under cover, the promotion of the Willard match had arrived almost at the point where Rickard was ready to spring the formal announcement of the bout.

IN THE MIDDLE of an alarming slump, John McGraw manager of the Giants is reported to have sent broadcast a demand for just one reliable pitcher at almost any reasonable price. He also may land Eddie Roush, the hold-out centerfielder of the Reds, before leaving Cincinnati.

RALPH SHINNERS, the $35,000 recruit from Indianapolis, has been benched after 28 games in which he hit only 270, and Bill Cunningham relieved him in the middle garden. McGraw has great need of a center fielder of Roush's ability and Roush has been a frozen asset to the Reds this season because of his salary demands.

AFTER a successful spring season, the Jamaica race track will close Wednesday afternoon and the horses will be moved a few miles away to Belmont park where the season begins on Thursday with the running of the famous metropolitan handicap, like the Brooklyn handicap, and the Friday, and on the same afternoon will this will be the 29th annual running suburban. The ladies' handicap, one of the metropolitan, a one mile race, of the oldest fixtures of the American L. Appleton memorial cup steeple, which is an event of great importance can turf, will have its 53th running on chase, worth $10,000.

Single-Six
Four Passenger
Coupe

PROBABLY no fine car has ever been greeted with the overwhelming and instantaneous approval that is being accorded to the new Packard Single-Six.

Never has Packard history witnessed such an outpouring. All over the country Packard salesrooms have literally been crowded with hundreds eager to see and to buy these beautiful cars.

No one who reacts to aristocratic atmosphere in a motor car, can well remain unresponsive to this new Packard.

Here is not alone the exquisite environment and positive performance of Packard, but a greater emphasis of value than has ever before been given in a truly fine car.

The prices of the new Single-Sixes at Detroit are: 5-Passenger Touring, $2465; Runabout, $2465; Sport Model, $2650; 4-Passenger Coupe, $3175; 5-Passenger Sedan, $3275; 7-Passenger Touring, $3665; 7-Passenger Sedan, $3525; 7-Passenger Sedan Limousine, $3575.

The price of the Twin-Six Touring is $3850 at Detroit.

PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY WEEK!

Next Monday begins a week in Atlanta that should appeal, not only to Atlantans, but to all the people of Georgia.

Atlanta is preparing, on a large scale, to welcome to this city thousands upon thousands of visitors. The "glad hand" will be extended and true, genuine Southern hospitality will hold sway.

No expense has been spared to furnish high-class, clean entertainment. Interesting features are scheduled for every day and every evening.

The New Orleans Mardi Gras floats, secured for the occasion, and featuring the big parade Monday evening, will be worth coming hundreds of miles to see.

Vaudeville, music and entertainment will blaze forth from almost every corner.

The Rodeo, an every afternoon affair to be held at Lakewood, will be an interesting event, the like of which has never before been brought to the South. Every detail of a great Western "round-up" will be depicted in thrilling fashion.

The people of Georgia—and the people of the South—should not fail to be present on some day during this week—every day if they can.

The undersigned join in with hundreds of other home manufacturers in extending a cordial welcome in advance to our expected visitors.

You will be welcome to take a trip through our plants and see how we produce.

The Thrifty Citizen Who Caught the Plugged Nickel

MR. BROWN had swallowed his lunch and had paid his bill. Cautiously he counted his change. "Here!" he said, sharply, "Take back this plugged nickel and give me a good one!"

Mr. Brown walked proudly out. They couldn't fool old Brown.

But old Brown had fooled himself.

Brown's day was heavy and dull. He lacked "pep." There was a mid-afternoon drowsy spell when he needed to be awake—the direct and natural result of heavy, starchy breakfasts and lunches, taken on faith and without question as to value—just because the food looked and tasted like food.

Thousands of shrewd business men who count their change, take their food for granted.

That's what builds up the sanitarian business, and puts the tired "all-done" feeling in to the mid-afternoon of a business day.

Grape-Nuts is a scientific food whose delicious, appetizing flavor and crispness are an introduction to well-balanced nourishment—a nourishment easily and quickly assimilated, so that body, brain and nerves are well fed and kept free of the stored-up poisons left by so many ill-selected foods.

Served with cream or good milk, Grape-Nuts is a complete food, always ready, always a delight to the taste—and always a safe selection for the man who thinks his stomach is entitled to some of the same protection he gives to his pocket.

COTTON PRICES AT LOWER LEVELS DESPITE BULLISH NEWS

May Tenders Wednesday
Expected to Be Heavy;
Short Crop Forecast

BY MARION KENDRICK

Cotton prices averaged lower Tuesday despite continued bad weather reports and low crop estimates, rumors that May notices today would total at least 40,000 to 50,000 bales causing the decline.

May notices covering 14,000 bales were in circulation in the New York exchange yesterday and several private houses were of the opinion that heavy tenders of the day would be allowed to circulate with the hope of breaking that market in order that contracts might be purchased at a lower basis. On the other hand, J. W. Jay & Co. followed their crop condition report of 65 per cent of normal with heavy buying orders. October advanced to 20.15 early in the day and then broke to 19.85, closing at 19.90. A net decline of 9 to 23 points was in effect at the general close.

Shortly after the opening, prices eased off on liquidation, but around noon they strengthened when dispatches covering bad weather conditions in the cotton belt were confirmed by the government report. The commerce department in Washington reported that cotton exports for April were nearly double those of the same month in 1921. Jay's estimate also was released at this time, placing the increase in acreage at only 8 per cent and the yield at 10,900,000 bales. Greater offerings checked the rallies and lowest prices of Tuesday were recorded just before the close, when May sold at 21.25, July at 20.01 and December at 19.81. Spot middling was at 21.60.

Liquidation by lots at the opening of the New Orleans market sent cotton 5 to 8 points lower, but further reports of unfavorable crop conditions from the western belt with scattered rainfall in the interior encouraged buying. The market recovered and advanced 5 to 8 points above the previous close, continuing until the gains amounted to 8 to 11 points. Heavy offerings by long again became prevalent during the afternoon, a large part of which was absorbed as the prices declined. The close was at net loss of 12 to 16 points. Spot middling was 20.00 cents. Atlanta middling dropped from 20.00 cents per pound to 19.85.

No Increase.

The difficulties attending the planting of the 1922 cotton crop now indicate that there will be practically no increase in the acreage planted this year as compared with that of 1921," according to Harvie Jordan, secretary of the American Cotton association. "It is now reported that all private agencies who have issued reports on the 1922 acreage will have to revise their estimates."

"Recent floods, excessive rains, cool nights, late planting, light fertilization in the old cotton states, and acreage abandonment, together with the widespread boll weevil menace now combine to render anything like a large yield of cotton this year a practical impossibility."

"The American Cotton association recently has requested the U. S. senate to secure a record of the tenable and untenable grades of cotton, including linters, now held in the stocks of American cotton in this country. As the daily price of spot cotton is regulated by the cotton exchanges, it is important for the entire cotton trade to be fully advised regarding the correct amount of tenable grades in this country. A recount of these stocks will no doubt show a very large percentage of untenable grades which should be eliminated from the supplies of tenable cotton, which alone should be used as the basis for price regulations."

Facing Cotton Famine.

"It cannot be denied that conditions have arisen by which the world cotton trade is now facing one of the most acute cotton famines since 1905. This fact will be more fully intensified as the crop season advances and the trade is made aware of the many financial difficulties and adverse weather conditions under which the new crop has been planted. There has already been an enormous acreage abandoned or overflooded, while farmers in many sections have been unable to replanting."

"While consumptive demand is increasing the available supplies of raw cotton are being rapidly depleted. The situation is one of serious concern, and while the growers are doing the best they can, they cannot meet and overcome the tremendous financial difficulties which have faced them this spring."

"Those who predict a large crop are destined to disappointment," he said.

into negotiations promptly. As has been revealed by the trend of debt discussions during recent months, whenever the question arose, oratory was immediately concentrated on what Great Britain owes us. To ameliorate this anti-British feeling on the subject, it was decided the British debt should be taken up first.

mission is felt by authorities here that congress, in imposing restrictions on the powers of the commission, limits for maturities and a minimum for the interest rate to be established through funding operations, was prompted largely by the feeling that Britain could and should pay promptly. Once the British funding is out of the way, officials feel, it will be possible to obtain more elastic powers for the commission in handling the debts of the other powers, which, because of their additional debts among themselves, particularly in Europe, would be very difficult to fund along set rules and limitations.

WHEREAS, the Charter of this corporation duly granted by the Superior Court of Fulton County, on June 15, 1908, provides:

"8. The capital of said corporation shall be seventy-five thousand ($75,000) dollars of common stock, divided into shares of one hundred ($100) dollars each, all of which fully paid in, and it is desired that the stockholder's liability of the capital stock at the time outstanding, shall not be increased by an increase in its capital from time to time to any sum not exceeding five hundred ($500) dollars, divided into shares of one hundred ($100) dollars each and such increase may be either common or preferred stock, as may be determined by the majority vote of the stockholders, and with such preference as to dividends and such restrictions as to voting power in respect of any preferred stock as may be determined by the stockholders.

provided that at no time shall the amount of preferred stock exceed in the aggregate the total common stock at the time authorized and paid in. It shall be competent to provide for the call and retirement of any preferred stock and the conditions as may be prescribed in the resolution authorizing its issuance, except that the right and power to authorize subsequent issues of preferred stock from time to time shall be vested in the corporation in the manner specified herein.

WHEREAS, it has been found desirable to issue to the corporation one thousand shares of ten thousand dollars, divided into one hundred shares of $100 each, all of which shall be paid in full;

IT IS RESOLVED, that a petition be filed in the name of the said corporation in the County of DeKalb, Georgia, to amend the Charter of the Corporation duly granted to it by the Board of Commissioners of the County of DeKalb, Georgia, on June 15, 1908, so that Article 10 of said Charter shall read as follows: "The Corporation shall have the right to issue one thousand shares of ten thousand dollars, divided into one hundred shares of $100 each, all of which shall be paid in full."

Piedmont Road Frontage

The activity in building on Piedmont Road is worthy of remark; a number of lovely homes are going up in the section between Piedmont Road and Roswell Road. This section has many advantages appealing to the home owner; has city water available, also electric lights and telephone service.

With the widening and repaving of Roswell Road further improvements may be expected. We can offer for sale a tract having about 500-foot frontage on Piedmont Road in the vicinity of Roswell Road at $20 a front foot. This is less than the prevailing price of frontage in high-class home sections, and the particular tract is suitable either for one home or for subdivision.

Is It Only a Dream?

Dreaming of home, but did nothing come of it?

In the meantime your days and years are slipping by.

Now is your only time to build one. No man ever did anything next week or next year.

You can't finish in a day but you can start. You can begin to plan and shape your course to make home a reality.

Come and talk it over with us. Our experience is worth something to you and it won't cost you anything.
